Brisk Gunfire Is Heard In German Capital and Many Planes Are Downed

Berlin Claims To Have Crippled Great Rolls-Royce Airplane Plant in the Midlands

By The Associated Press
BERLIN, Aug. 26 (Monday) (AP)—Berliners huddled in basement shelters for three hours and four minutes early today while anti-aircraft cannon blazed away into cloudy skies at British planes circling over the Nazi capital.

The alarm, from 12:19 to 8:23 a. m. (5:19 to 8:23 p. m., Monday, est) was the longest of the war for Berlin.

(After several previous alarms at widely-spaced intervals, German authorities have not even acknowledged that British planes reached Berlin itself.)

There were no reports of damage, but the fire from guns of all sizes was brisk all over the city. Searchlights apparently did little good in penetrating the clouds and were used sparingly. A number of the anti-aircraft guns fired tracer shells, seemingly aimed by the sound of the planes overhead.

Sherwood Urges U. S. Give More Help to British

Playwright Calls Ford and Lindbergh Misguided Isolationists

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—Declaring that "misguided isolationists" do not reflect the true feeling of the American people, Robert E. Sherwood, American playwright, urged today that the United States give increased "constructive help" to Canada and Britain in their war against Germany.

Sherwood, who spoke over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, acclaimed recent establishment of a joint defense board by Canada and the United States as a step in the right direction, and asserted:

"This help must continue; it must be increased; it must provide the basis for permanent policy."

The vast majority of Americans, said Sherwood, believe that the future of their free institutions are at stake in the battle of Britain.

The playwright referred to Henry Ford and Charles A. Lindbergh as typical of "misguided isolationists who think that the Atlantic and Pacific oceans are still just as broad as in the days of sailing vessels," and continued:

Italy Promises New Surprise in War with British

Virginio Gayda Makes Mysterious Statement in Newspaper

By The Associated Press
ROME, Aug. 25—Fascism's chief editorial spokesman served notice on Britain today that "it will not be many more days before she finds herself up against some new surprise."

This warning, without any hint of what Italy and Germany might have in mind, was sounded by the usually authoritative Virginio Gayda during a new surge of Italian air raids on the British island fortress of Malta, continued air sparring in North Africa and three British night raids on northern Italy.

Considerable speculation arose immediately whether Gayda referred to possible Italian action against Egypt, a thrust in the Balkans or to the long-expected German attempt to invade Britain.

The tenor of his remarks, made in the newspaper La Voce D'Italia, was such that either separate German or Italian action or both could have been in the writer's mind.

Greek Situation Tense
Tension between Italy and Greece remained undiminished and Fascist officials declined to throw any light on the possibility of a move against that pro-British neighbor of Italian-annexed Albania.

They met with a "no comment" reports from abroad that Italian troops are massing on the border of Greece in the wake of Fascist press demands for border territory—demands the Greeks have indicated they would resist.

Some observers thought Gayda's words may have been by way of explaining to the Italian public why the threatened summer invasion of England has not yet been attempted with the time for unfavorable winter fogs over the English channel drawing near.

Chiding the English for "being jubilant because the British isles have not yet been destroyed, Gayda said he could assure them that the German offensive, like the Italian, "hardly has started."

No Advance Notice
"Germany and Italy are not accustomed to communicate in advance to the British their intentions, the time and the form of their actions."

"They strike by surprise with means least expected but with forces mathematically certain. It will not be many days before the British will find themselves up against some new surprise."

"This is a calm foreword we give the English, together with advice not to be in a hurry to unfurl their flags."

Gigantic Highway Program Planned As Defense Move

Construction in Maryland Will Cost More than $50,000,000

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 25 (AP)—A state highway—building program which would cost between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 has been submitted by the Federal Public Roads Administration in the interests of the national defense program, Governor O'Connor announced today.

No "definite indication" was given as to how the vast program would be financed, but the statement from the governor's office said "it is expected that the necessary federal aid will be forthcoming from the authorization bill now being considered."

The federal program recommended "the immediate construction of a new, multiple-lane divided highway" between Washington and Baltimore, and a similar thoroughfare to replace route No. 50, the Defense Highway between Washington and Annapolis.

On the latter route, "any addition of military traffic volume will necessitate building a new road," the federal report stated, and it recommended that the new highway be "designed for a four-lane divided section as the ultimate development."

Mexican Gunboat Halts U. S. Ship, But Releases It

Tanker R. J. Hanna Stopped, but Not Searched, Dillon Reports

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25 (AP)—The United States oil tanker R. J. Hanna today was halted off Mexico's closely patrolled Pacific coast by the Mexican gunboat G29, the second American craft to be stopped within a week. It was permitted to proceed after its identity was established.

Lieut.-Commander Wallace Dillon, naval attaché of the American embassy, said the navy department of Mexico had informed him officially of the detention. He said the tanker was neither boarded nor searched.

At first the captain of the tanker, whose port of departure and destination were not learned here, refused to leave, but was forced to do so when the G29 steamed flush across his bow flashing a "halt" message from its searchlight.

Position Vague
The tanker's position was given only as seventy-five miles north-west of Acapulco, Dillon said. The Mexican navy department advised him, and it was not known whether the craft was in Mexican territorial waters.

The government increased its vigilance of both coastlines, it was reported because of fear that certain political elements in the country might try to land arms for a revolutionary movement.

Because of the still unsettled presidential campaign struggle between General Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, and General Juan Andreu Almazan, Independent, the political situation in Mexico remains tense. Almazan was last reported vacationing in Panama.

Willkie Will Not Accept McNutt's Offer To Debate

Says "Paul Is a Persistent Fellow Trying To Keep in Picture"

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY
NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today it "would be a pure waste of time" for him to debate campaign issues with Paul V. McNutt, his college classmate and fraternity brother who now holds a high administration post.

McNutt, federal security administrator, had offered to meet Willkie in platform argument. In a statement, the latter replied:

"Paul is a persistent fellow who is trying to keep in the picture after a rather rough and forced exit at the Chicago New Deal convention. It is a little tough for him, but he is still a likeable chap."

(McNutt, bowing to the president's wishes withdrew as a contender for the Democratic vice presidential nomination and supported Henry A. Wallace.)

Willkie asserted that "these debate suggestions of New Dealers are quite amusing," and added:

"It is particularly interesting that the president refuses to debate because he is too busy, while having ample time to make purely 'non-political' dedicatory addresses. Perhaps (secretary) Ickes, assigned the real cause for the refusal, namely it would lessen the presidential dignity."

Willkie and McNutt both belonged to Beta Theta Pi fraternity while attending Indiana University. They once appeared together on a speaking program at a fraternity reunion.

A statement from Willkie headquarters said that the nominee had talked by telephone with Kenneth F. Simpson, former New York Republican committeeman who is recovering from an illness in Nova Scotia.

Burke-Wadsworth Bill Likely To Pass This Week

Congress To Begin Final Debate on Conscription Today

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—Confident that the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill will be enacted this week, administration leaders in Congress already are working out plans to speed an appropriation to pay the costs of military training.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, told reporters he would offer an amendment to the draft bill—on which the Senate is scheduled to begin its twelfth day of debate tomorrow—to authorize an appropriation.

If this amendment is adopted, Barkley said, the way will be cleared for inclusion of the funds in the pending $5,008,000,000 defense appropriation bill. Congressional rules do not permit an appropriation unless a specific authorization previously has been voted.

Expenses About $1,000,000,000

Barkley would not estimate the amount of money needed to start the conscription program but most senators believed immediate requests would be far less than the $1,000,000,000 which some have previously estimated.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Britain's Royal Air Force and Germany's Luftwaffe traded resounding smashes at each other's capitals early today.

Residents of London and Berlin alike crouched in air raid shelters while the clamor of air battle echoed overhead.

For Berlin it may have been the first real raid of the war.

For London, it was the fifth raid since Saturday morning. Nazi scream-bombs, intended to terrorize, were added to the incendiary clusters which started great fires in the Saturday night and Sunday morning raids on London.

Fifth Raid on London

London's fourth alarm of the week-end came Sunday evening and ended just before midnight, only to be followed by the fifth shortly after householders had put themselves to bed again.

Neither the British nor the Germans acknowledged the extent of the raids or assayed damage.

In Berlin, however, residents could hear a roar which sounded as if many British planes were overhead in the low-hanging clouds (Continued on Page Two)

Londoners Forced To Take to Shelters for Fifth Time in Three Days; Many Raiders Brought Down to Total of 1,175 Planes, British Declare; One in Every Four Bagged

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Monday) (AP)—Screaming bombs were heard dropping in the London area early today as the fifth air raid, warning within three days roused Londoners from their beds.

The German raiders departed quickly under heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Through the night other German raiders kept up attacks on widespread parts of England.

In Midland town planes were heard overhead as well as the thud of bombs dropping some miles away.

1,175 PLANES BAGGED

The weekend "bag" boosted to 1,175 the number of German planes which the British declare have been brought down by Royal Air Force and ground defenses fighting against air raids on this country since the start of the war.

This total includes 1,101 aircraft which the British say have been lost by the Luftwaffe since it started its mass air raids on Britain Aug. 8.

London's first alarm of two during the night came after a new lull.

An official account of Sunday's raids said that "one in every four of the enemy was shot down in the course of air attacks which were launched in the late afternoon of yesterday against our shores."

Distant gunfire was heard from the center of London. The air ministry announced a total of thirty-nine German and eleven British planes had been shot down in air fighting which started with sporadic raids and grew steadily more intense through last night.

Many Planes Heard
Even as searchlights swept the skies over the British capital and the deadly hum of airplanes could be heard from the outskirts, the sudden silencing of German radio stations at Bremen, Munich, Leipzig and Berlin indicated that British bombers were repaying the Nazi visits.

Of the eleven admittedly lost British planes, the air ministry said "it is known that three of our pilots are safe."

British air fighters, battling new waves of German air raiders over southern England, had shot down twenty-four of today's bag in one fight when a Nazi squadron attempted to cross the Dorset coast "in force."

Revising upwards its figures for yesterday's fierce air fighting, the air ministry claimed a bag of fifty German planes—making a two-day total so far of seventy-five—and admitted British losses of nineteen.

With four British planes admittedly missing today, their own losses rose to twenty-three for the week-end but the air ministry communiqué said the crews of all but eight British planes—seven Saturday and one Sunday—were safe.

Bituminous Coal Production May Break All Records for Many Years

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—The National Association reported tonight that the output of bituminous coal in the third quarter of 1940 was likely to exceed 112 million tons and be the best third-quarter output for any year since 1929.

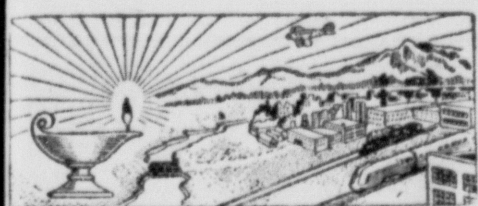

The ordinary seasonal rise now at hand in the output and the consumption of coal is accentuated by the higher rate at which coal-burning industries, particularly steel, are now operating," the association said in a statement.

It said present stocks of coal were not out of line with the accelerated rate of consumption.

"There is a sound basis," it continued, "for anticipating a further increase in stocks and a good demand and a firm market for bituminous coal straight through September. Everything points that way."

"There are many uncertainties as to what the future holds in store but at least there is the surety that the national defense program requires the doubling and the trebling of much of the industrial machine. Thus a certain amount of precautionary fuel buying and delivery beyond immediate requirements is to be expected."

"Further tending to stimulate buying and stocking of coal during September is the prospective higher prices for many grades of industrial fuels which result when the minimum price schedules promulgated by the federal bituminous coal division become effective. That date is now set as October 1.

May Have Bombed City
It was impossible to ascertain where or whether bombs were dropped. The planes apparently came from the west and north, their motors roaring distinctly.

German official accounts told only of Nazi raids on England Sunday night, in which an official tabulation said fifty-one British and twelve German planes were lost. This brought to 115 the German claim of British losses in two days.

(German accounts did not mention the renewed raids on London Sunday night and Monday morning. The British placed German losses at thirty-nine and their own at eleven, bringing the weekend totals to eighty-nine Germans and thirty British.)

Germany, still striving to conquer Britain from the air, claimed to have struck a devastating blow against the great Rolls-Royce factory in the Midlands—the plant that turns out engines for the Spitfire fighter planes which the British hunt on heavily to check the Luftwaffe.

Dive bombers, according to DNB, official news agency, damaged the big plant which is at Derby, sixty miles southeast of Manchester, so effectively that they put the great part of the works "out of commission."

Sinks British Destroyer
The German high command at the same time announced the sinking of another British destroyer, of the Viscount class, and declared German planes had attacked numerous English towns, coastal and inland.

The Saturday attacks, the high command said, were aimed particularly at air fields and seaports. It cited

Barkley Favors "A Whole String" Of Bases for Navy

Senate Leader Pleased with Offer to U. S. from Bermuda

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic Senate leader, said today that this country ought to acquire "a whole string" of air and naval bases guarding the Panama canal.

Commenting on the disclosure in Bermuda yesterday that the great sound there would be made available to the United States for an air base and possibly for a naval base, the senator told newsmen:

"I think it's a very fine indication of the spirit of those who control Bermuda to offer it to us."

Barkley said that the great sound, about 700 miles southeast of New York, was a desirable "if not indispensable" outpost for defense of the Atlantic approaches to the United States.

He added that the Bermuda site was only one of many which this country ought to acquire. Recalling that the British islands of Newfoundland, Trinidad, Barbados and the Bahamas had all been mentioned in reports concerning negotiations for the acquisition of additional bases, the administration leader said the location of bases was a military and technical matter.

This total includes 1,101 aircraft which the British say have been lost by the Luftwaffe since it started its mass air raids on Britain Aug. 8.

London's first alarm of two during the night came after a new lull.

An official account of Sunday's raids said that "one in every four of the enemy was shot down in the course of air attacks which were launched in the late afternoon of yesterday against our shores."

Distant gunfire was heard from the center of London. The air ministry announced a total of thirty-nine German and eleven British planes had been shot down in air fighting which started with sporadic raids and grew steadily more intense through last night.

illuminating a large area of the city, the damage was assessed officially as "very slight."

The Germans contented themselves during the early daylight hours today with isolated sorties on other parts of England and Wales.

After another seeming lull in Germany's Luftwaffe war, however, the attack intensified after midnight with a first wave of fifty German planes reported over the southeast coast.

Another battle was reported tonight over the southeast coast and two Nazi Messerschmitts were said to have been shot down. Shortly afterward, planes believed to be German were reported over Wales and another southwestern English region.

British bombers, meanwhile, carried out extensive night bombing assignments Saturday against Germany and Italy, again rousing Swiss fire for crossing over Switzerland to and from their Italian objectives.

Frankfurt, Ludwigshafen and Stuttgart, as well as many airdromes in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany were mentioned in an air ministry communique as targets of the British night raids.

Attack Gun Positions
A later air ministry statement added that for the third successive night, British bombers also had attacked German long-range gun positions around Cape Gris Nez and the coastal command aircraft had "spotted" British artillery firing against Nazi gun emplacements between Boulogne and Calais, on the French channel coast.

At Ludwigshafen it said, the British bombers scored "several hits" on a nitrogen plant and observed heavy explosions. Several small fires broke out also after an attack on a synthetic oil plant at Frankfurt, it

W. Mason Shehan, Circuit Judge, Is Dead at Age of 67

Prominent Easton Resident Victim of Heart Attack in Home

EASTON, Md., Aug. 25 (AP)—W. Mason Shehan, chief judge of the second judicial circuit court and for years one of the eastern shore's most prominent residents, died this morning of a heart attack.

Judge Shehan, 67, had suffered from a heart ailment for some time, but had not been confined to his home and only last night was visiting at the home of a friend.

He became ill about 1 a. m. after returning home, and summoned his son, George Phillip Shehan, and his wife from a dance at the country club. He rallied from that attack, but was stricken again several hours later and died about 8:30 a. m.

Judge Shehan's wife was killed in an automobile accident in November, 1938, and friends said the jurist never fully recovered from the shock.

Son in Hawaii
Besides his son George, who with his bride of a few months lives at the Shehan home here, the judge is survived by another son, W. Mason Shehan, Jr., who is in the naval air corps in Hawaii.

Judge Shehan was a former state insurance commissioner and president of the State Bar Association. He was elected judge in 1934 and his term would have expired until 1949. As chief judge he also was a member of the Court of Appeals.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Shehan residence.

Judge Shehan was a native Shoreman, born at Oxford in Talbot county. He started his legal career in the office of the late United States Senator Charles H. Gibson. In 1912 he became state insurance commissioner, and held that post until 1919 when he resigned to devote full time to his law practice.

In the ensuing years he was active in Eastern Shore politics, and was often mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Won Hard Battle
He never announced as a candidate for governor, however, but in 1934 entered the race for chief judge of the second judicial circuit, which embraces Caroline, Talbot, Queen Anne's, Kent and Cecil counties. He won the nomination after a hard campaign against Associate Judge Thomas J. Keating and James F. Evans.

He served as president of the State Bar Association in 1932-33 and also had been president of the Talbot County Bar Association.

He was a close friend and personal adviser of many high state officials, including Governor Crothers, Governor Harrington and Governor Ritchie.

He served on numerous commissions and committees, one of which revised the departmental government of the state under Governor Ritchie. He was a member of the American Law Institute, and the Judicial Council of Maryland.

Band Contest Is Postponed One Week

The governor said that on all other state roads designated as of importance to defense needs, stabilized shoulders of eight to ten feet wide would be required, in addition to much realignment and regrading.

"In view of the tremendous scope of the suggested program," the statement from the governor's office said, "the Maryland commission recommended that the cost of construction, right-of-way and engineering of the improvements be provided primarily by special federal appropriation, because of its importance in connection with defense highway needs."

Chairman Ezra B. Whitman of the roads commission estimated the cost at a minimum of $30,000,000.

Prompt enactment of legislation giving the roads commission the right of entry on property immediately following the fair valuation by competent authority was recommended by the federal agency.

Route No. 2, the Governor Ritchie Highway, and route No. 40, the Philadelphia highway from Baltimore to the Delaware line, are the only roads of first-ranking military importance which would require no work other than regular maintenance.

The State Roads Commission has urged that "serious consideration" be given to providing a traffic artery through Baltimore to connect the Washington and Philadelphia highways. Such an artery is necessary, the commissioner warned, if congestion and loss of time in military traffic is to be avoided.

The next step in development of the program is expected to depend upon the outcome of the authorization bill.

reported, and another fire after bombs dropped on an electric power station near Cologne.

Besides twenty Nazi-occupied airdromes in Holland, Belgium and France, it said, British fliers also raided an airdrome under construction in the Dutch city of Haarlem.

In the attacks on Germany, it said, the Daimler-Benz plant at Stuttgart, "one of the most important armament and armored car factories in western Germany" was "methodically bombed for more than an hour."

"Fire soon broke out, as more bombs fell, and spread rapidly until the main group of buildings was seen to be blazing," it added. "As the flames spread a series of heavy explosions was observed. One of the biggest explosions of all occurred ten minutes after the aircraft had left for home and fires still burning fiercely in many parts of the plant were visible from sixty miles away."

Raid in Italy
Bombed military targets in Italy, the communiqué said, included objectives at Milan and Sesto Caenide. (The Italian high command acknowledged there had been raids in Lombardy and Piedmont northern regions, but said the British planes were driven off without scoring any military blow.)

In answer to reports that Switzerland was making an energetic protest, citing previous British aerial trespasses and regrets, an authoritative source declared that any violation of Swiss neutrality by British planes was an "accident."

A home security ministry spokesman said that the air raids Saturday, which caused three alarms in the heart of London, started two large fires, one in the "city"—London's closely-built wall street section in the center of the downtown business district. The other was in a warehouse district.

Casualties were few and the fires quickly brought under control, however, the spokesman declared, although he acknowledged that several hundred bombs had fallen on the vast, sprawling city.

A survey showed that most of the bombs, explosives and incendiaries, had been dropped in a circle around the center of the city outside the protective balloon barrage and had damaged at least one factory and several warehouses besides burning down a number of dwellings and business properties.

Two Reported Killed

Two persons were reported killed and several injured when bombs fell on a working class district in an undisclosed northeast town today.

Also in the northeast, bomb hits burst water mains in one town.

Throughout the night, falling explosives and incendiary bombs caused considerable property damage and an undisclosed number of casualties, some fatal, in the northeast.

In one coastal town, a gasworks was hit and 200 persons were left homeless. In another district further south, thirty persons were made homeless and a fire was started when two high explosive bombs struck near a large factory.

Brush and timber were set afire on a northeast moor by incendiary bombs.

In a southeast town, a bomb ploughed its way under an air raid shelter and exploded, killing a woman inside. High explosives and incendiary bombs also caused some damage and casualties in a southwest town.

Delayed-action bombs exploded periodically in Portsmouth today. Because of bombs lying about, a number of streets were closed off and residents of the emptied areas were moved into schools and fed by the municipality.

Many families in London awoke today in shelters, having spent the night under the security of their thick roofs rather than risk the peril of delayed-action bombs or take the chance of being hurried underground again by new raids.

In one shelter in a business street, a 70-year-old clergyman led prayer while outside firemen, even after daybreak, continued to turn their hoses on flames flaring up occasionally from bomb-kindled fires and air raid precaution workers searched in ruins.

Londoners found stark evidence that air siege had made their city part of the war's front line. They saw an ancient church gutted by

American War Industries Speed Up Defense in Great War Plants

Lusty Strides Taken To Provide Necessities for U. S. Defense

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—America's potential industrial giant—the manufacture of arms—has begun to flex its muscles and show its business power.

Some economic analysts are describing the grim-visaged young offshoot of a war-disturbed world as destined to grow into the mightiest industrial stalwart the United States has seen since automobiles transformed the business scene.

What lusty strides it has begun to take across the industrial stage was evident last week in such items as these:

(1) Federal awards for defense works dominate construction contracts, totaling nearly $80,000,000 in the week ended Thursday.

(2) Financial quarters estimate the aircraft industry alone may spend as high as $500,000,000 for additions to its productive capacity.

(3) Curtiss-Wright, among aviation expansion plans, announces a site at Lockland, O., near Cincinnati, for a huge engine factory to employ 12,000 to 15,000 workers.

(4) Labor department reports sharp employment gains in some war industries, notably shipbuilding.

(5) Industrial indices, under lift of increasing arms spending, continue summer rise despite drop in export trade due to closing of European continent.

Many Men Get Jobs
Although arms outlay is regarded as only in its early stages, considering the $10,000,000,000 U. S. program and enlargement of British buying plans, the new war industry already has cut unemployment.

Payrolls in aircraft, engines, shipbuilding, explosives, tools and aluminum plants are estimated to average about 45 per cent higher than in 1937, the last peak year of industrial activity before the world began its frenzied shift from the plow to the sword.

For some years at least, the building of plants and a two-ocean navy, the equipping of army and naval forces and maintenance of these increased fighting arms are expected to dominate the domestic business scene.

Five Billions Per Year
"The new arms industry will be geared to a production rate representing a turnover of at least $5,000,000,000 per year," says the Standard Statistics Co.

"Even after the basic national defense program is completed, the maintenance of a constant state of military and naval preparedness will require continuing large outlays annually for replacement."

"Viewed in this light the arms industry becomes one of major importance. It will be a permanent addition to our industrial structure, whereas in the past we have merely had relatively brief periods of concentrated emergency spending for armament purposes."

U. S. arms expenditures, now running around $200,000,000 monthly, are expected to rise to more than $500,000,000 monthly before next summer.

In several places areas of three or four blocks were closed to sight-seers.

Elsewhere in the metropolitan area, incendiary bombs struck the roof of a hospital but the fire was extinguished by firemen and nurses before it could spread.

Several four-story business buildings, however, caught fire and only their blackened shells were left. In another commercial district, a big blaze burned the roof off a large warehouse and damaged another.

Summary

bombed the English midlands this morning.

Sunday night they also hit at southeast, northeast, and southwest England and at Wales. In the southwest, the British air ministry said 130 German planes tried to penetrate at the Dorset coast, but that 34 of them were destroyed and most of the others turned back with damage.

Throughout England, the ministry reported, one out of every four enemy planes was destroyed.

Variance in Claims
Indicative of the ferocity of the fighting were the rival claims of planes destroyed. They were revised upward again and again, until the Germans declared fifty-one British and twelve Nazi machines had been destroyed, while the British said thirty-nine German and eleven British planes were downed.

In the battles of Saturday night, followed by a "breather" period Sunday morning, the Germans said the plane losses were sixty-four British and twenty Nazis; the British said the figures were fifty and nineteen, in Britain's favor.

The British early acknowledged some Sunday casualties and damage in a southwest town from high-explosive and incendiary bombs and said water-mains were burst in a northeast port.

The RAF, however, on Saturday night bombed Frankfurt, Ludwigshafen and Stuttgart in southwest Germany, many airdromes in Germany, France, Belgium and Holland, and "targets" at Milan, Italy, the air ministry declared.

New Surprise Promised
Virginia Gayda, Fascism's editorial spokesman, wrote mysteriously in his Sunday newspaper La Voce d'Italia: "It will not be many days before the British will find themselves up against some new surprise."

He left unsaid whether he meant that Adolf Hitler's legions would attempt to storm England or whether Italy planned some new action.

Although his words also left the possibility of either separate or combined Italian and German action either in Europe or Africa, Gayda offered this possible clue:

"Germany's lightning war has not yet begun and everything which has happened up to now in the British skies and seas are nothing but methodical, necessary preparation."

British planes, besides staging their own raids on Germany, again flew over Swiss territory to drop bombs and pamphlets in northern Italy.

The Swiss political department at Bern quickly announced a new "energetic protest" to London, citing Britain's previous expression of "deepest regrets" five days ago after a similar trespass and protest.

River Starts Running Backwards;
Man Walks 616 Miles To Join Army

By GLADWIN HILL
NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—It's a great weather for walking.

If you have any doubt, give a gander at this gallery of demon-bunions-derbyites who turned up this week:

Glen Smith of Mudville, N. Y., walked two miles—to turn in a fire alarm!

J. A. Coffey, a Linville, N. C. farmer, walked thirty miles to report that floods would delay his produce a few days.

Peter Sonts of Troy, N. Y., walked two round trips to New York city—a total of 616 miles—seeing about enlisting in the army.

And Julius Kovack of San Francisco walked 2,500 miles to attend the American Legion Convention in Boston.

Anybody want to go for a walk?

Apparently the weather was invigorating all around, because there was a variety of other astonishing accomplishments.

One Paul Cotteau swam 114 miles off Florida.

Donald McNair of Santa Cruz, Calif., swam 353 feet—under water.

Divorce Is Granted To Local Woman

A Cumberland woman last week was awarded a divorce four days after her attorney presented the divorce in Circuit Court.

The decree was signed for Mrs. Eva May Ring who secured the divorce from John L. Ring. Mrs. Ring was represented by Attorney Harold E. Naughton. The couple were married in 1913.

Mrs. Cecelia M. Crowe last week filed suit for divorce against her husband, Oscar L. Crowe. Mrs. Crowe charges her husband deserted her four years after their marriage. She asks the custody of three minor children.

Desertion is also charged in the suit brought by Mrs. Catherine Lucas against Louis Lucas, a non-resident of Maryland. They were married in 1935 at Capitol Heights, Md., and lived together until 1937. They have no children.

considerable damage to fields at North Weald, Hornchurch, Manston, Canterbury and Ramsgate, all points south or east of London. Hornchurch, in Essex county, is close to the East London suburbs.

The great naval base of Portsmouth where Lord Nelson's old ship "Victory" lies was one of the targets of the Nazi bombers. Harbor and wharf facilities were set on fire, the communique said.

Attack Dover Again

At Dover, DNB elaborated, Nazi bombers dived 3,000 feet through the clouds and scattered seventy bombs on British troop concentrations. They encountered no resistance, the agency said, and reported that the German fliers, zooming back to the cover of the clouds, saw fires breaking out below.

Great Yarmouth was also effectively bombed, the communique said, and storehouses and sheds were set afire. There were fires, also, and explosions in the Thames region.

Other German claims: Considerable destruction to Bristol harbor on the west coast.

Damage to airplane factories at Birmingham, Kingston and Rochester.

Darkening of numerous searchlight positions.

Bomb Open Fields

The communique said British fliers had dropped bombs in open fields in north, west and southwest Germany and on the residential section of two southwestern German cities where some houses were hit and two civilians killed and two wounded.

The submarine which claimed destruction of the destroyer also reported sinking a 7,000-ton merchant vessel.

which he was not competent to discuss.

"But we ought to have a whole string of bases along the islands guarding the Panama canal," he declared.

Such a string would conceivably include Trinidad, near the northern coast of South America; Barbados, about 200 miles to the northeast, and the Bahamas islands about the same distance east of Miami, Fla.

May Cancel War Debt

Questioned about methods of paying Britain for leases on the base sites, the Senator pointed out that no official plan had been announced yet but that various methods had been suggested in different quarters, among them reduction or cancellation of the British war debt and transfer to Britain of fifty United States destroyers.

Whether the administration intends to acquire the leases without action by Congress has not yet been disclosed. Attorney General Jackson is understood to have given the cabinet an opinion last Friday on the legal questions involved.

When he announced at a press conference recently that negotiations for the acquisition of bases from the British were under way, President Roosevelt said the consideration had not yet been determined.

As the bill now stands, there is no limitation on the number of men who may be trained. This is left to the discretion of the president.

Senator Austin of Vermont, acting minority leader and a supporter of the Burke-Wadsworth bill, said that there was strong Republican support for a limitation.

Amendment Strongly Backed

He predicted that most Republicans would vote for an amendment by Senator White (R-Me.) providing that only the number of men for whose training funds had been specifically voted could be inducted into the army.

A pending amendment by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) would fix the number to be trained at 800,000.

Senator Barkley told his colleagues he favored an amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) setting the number of trainees in service at any one time at 1,000,000.

Meanwhile, the House Military Committee marked time on its own version of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. Members said that before they acted they wanted to see what form of the measure was finally approved by the Senate.

More than a score of amendments are pending to the Senate bill, but both Barkley and Austin expressed confidence that few material changes would be made in the measure.

Most controversy is expected over a proposal by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) to delay actual conscription until January.

"If you're drinking a glass of beer, you get a new head on it."

MAIL TRAIN LOOTED BY BANDITS

Police file handcuffs off Louis Weiller, mail clerk aboard the Albany-bound train robbed of mail sacks which police believe contained large sums of money. The daring holdup was executed with precision by six bandits who handcuffed the clerks and carried the sacks to a waiting automobile as the train rested in a New York City station.

Two leaders of Almazan's presidential campaign were arrested recently in Acapulco but were released, reportedly on direct orders of President Cardenas who has insisted he has "hands off" in the campaign.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that two more prominent supporters of Almazan have left Mexico for the United States.

Political observers believed the men had been "eased out" of the country quietly by President Cardenas in order to guard against an attempted coup by Almazanistas.

The two Almazan leaders are Eduardo Neri, president of Almazan's chief political organization, and Antonio Gonzalez Cardenas, member of its executive committee.

Willkie will discuss political conditions in western Pennsylvania at a luncheon tomorrow with former state Senator Frank J. Harris of Pittsburgh.

The nominee spent most of the day in his hotel offices, and did some work on speeches he will make during his western campaign tour.

Delayed-action bombs exploded periodically in Portsmouth today. Because of bombs lying about, a number of streets were closed off and residents of the emptied areas were moved into schools and fed by the municipality.

Many families in London awoke today in shelters, having spent the night under the security of their thick roofs rather than risk the peril of delayed-action bombs or take the chance of being hurried underground again by new raids.

In one shelter in a business street, a 70-year-old clergyman led prayer while outside firemen, even after daybreak, continued to turn their hoses on flames flaring up occasionally from bomb-kindled fires and air raid precaution workers searched in ruins.

Londoners found stark evidence that air siege had made their city part of the war's front line. They saw an ancient church gutted by

American War Industries Speed Up Defense in Great War Plants

Lusty Strides Taken To Provide Necessities for U. S. Defense

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (AP)—America's potential industrial giant—the manufacture of arms—has begun to flex its muscles and show its business power.

Some economic analysts are describing the grim-visaged young offshoot of a war-disturbed world as destined to grow into the mightiest industrial stalwart the United States has seen since automobiles transformed the business scene.

What lusty strides it has begun to take across the industrial stage was evident last week in such items as these:

(1) Federal awards for defense works dominate construction contracts, totaling nearly $80,000,000 in the week ended Thursday.

(2) Financial quarters estimate the aircraft industry alone may spend as high as $500,000,000 for additions to its productive capacity.

(3) Curtiss-Wright, among aviation expansion plans, announces a site at Lockland, O., near Cincinnati, for a huge engine factory to employ 12,000 to 15,000 workers.

(4) Labor department reports sharp employment gains in some war industries, notably shipbuilding.

(5) Industrial indices, under lift of increasing arms spending, continue summer rise despite drop in export trade due to closing of European continent.

Many Men Get Jobs

Although arms output is regarded as only in its early stages, considering the $10,000,000,000 U. S. program and enlargement of British buying plans, the new war industry already has cut unemployment.

Payrolls in aircraft, engines, shipbuilding, explosives, tools and aluminum plants are estimated to average about 45 per cent higher than in 1937, the last peak year of industrial activity before the world began its frenzied shift from the plow to the sword.

For some years at least, the building of plants and a two-ocean navy, the equipping of army and naval forces and maintenance of these increased fighting arms are expected to dominate the domestic business trend.

Five Billions Per Year

"The new arms industry will be geared to a production rate representing a turnover of at least $5,000,000,000 per year," says the Standard Statistics Co.

"Even after the basic national defense program is completed, the maintenance of a constant state of military and naval preparedness will require continuing large outlays annually for replacement.

"Viewed in this light the arms industry becomes one of major importance. It will be a permanent addition to our industrial structure, whereas in the past we have merely had relatively brief periods of concentrated emergency spending for armament purposes."

U. S. arms expenditures, now running around $200,000,000 monthly, are expected to rise to more than $500,000,000 monthly before next summer.

fire, a bomb-scarred cemetery in the Thames estuary district, four flame-seared warehouses in one area and a home where a bullet eye bomb hit had killed three occupants.

In several places areas of three or four blocks were closed to sight-seers.

Elsewhere in the metropolitan area, incendiary bombs struck the roof of a hospital but the fire was extinguished by firemen and nurses before it could spread.

Several four-story business buildings, however, caught fire and only their blackened shells were left. In another commercial district, a big blaze burned the roof off a large warehouse and damaged another.

Summary

bombed the English midlands this morning.

Sunday night they also hit at southeast, northeast, and southwest England and at Wales. In the southwest, the British air ministry said 130 German planes tried to penetrate at the Dorset coast, but that 34 of them were destroyed and most of the others turned back with damage.

Throughout England, the ministry reported, one out of every four enemy planes was destroyed.

Variance in Claims

Indicative of the ferocity of the fighting were the rival claims of planes destroyed. They were revised upward again and again, until the Germans declared fifty-one British and twelve Nazi machines had been destroyed, while the British said thirty-nine German and eleven British planes were downed.

In the battles of Saturday night, followed by a "breather" period Sunday morning, the Germans said the plane losses were sixty-four British and twenty Nazis; the British said the figures were fifty and nineteen in Britain's favor.

The British early acknowledged some Sunday casualties and damage in a southwest town from high-explosive and incendiary bombs and said water-mains were burst in a northeast port.

The RAF, however, on Saturday night bombed Frankfurt, Ludwigshafen and Stuttgart in southwest Germany, many airdromes in Germany, France, Belgium and Holland, and "targets" at Milan, Italy, the air ministry declared.

New Surprise Promised

Virginia Gayda, Fascism's editorial spokesman, wrote mysteriously in his Sunday newspaper La Voce d'Italia: "It will not be many days before the British will find themselves up against some new action."

He left unsaid whether he meant that Adolf Hitler's legions would attempt to storm England or whether Italy planned some new action.

Although his words also left the possibility of either separate or combined Italian and German action either in Europe or Africa, Gayda offered this possible clue:

"Germany's lightning war has not yet begun and everything which has happened up to now in the British skies and seas are nothing but methodical, necessary preparation."

British planes, besides staging their own raids on Germany, again flew over Swiss territory to drop bombs and pamphlets in northern Italy.

The Swiss political department at Bern quickly announced a new "energetic protest" to London, citing Britain's previous expression of "deepest regrets" five days ago after a similar trespass and protest.

Divorce Is Granted To Local Woman

A Cumberland woman last week was awarded a divorce four days after her attorney presented the divorce in Circuit Court.

The decree was signed for Mrs. Eva May Ring who secured the divorce from John L. Ring, Mrs. Ring was represented by Attorney Harold E. Naughton. The couple were married in 1913.

Mrs. Cecelia M. Crowe last week filed suit for divorce against her husband, Oscar L. Crowe. Mrs. Crowe charges her husband deserted her four years after their marriage. She asks the custody of three minor children.

Desertion is also charged in the suit brought by Mrs. Catherine Lucas against Louis Lucas, a non-resident of Maryland. They were married in 1935 at Capitol Heights, Md., and lived together until 1937. They have no children.

considerable damage to fields at North Weald, Hornchurch, Manston, Canterbury and Ramsgate, all points south or east of London. Hornchurch, in Essex county, is close to the East London suburbs.

The great naval base of Portsmouth where Lord Nelson's old ship "Victory" lies was one of the targets of the Nazi bombers. Harbor and wharf facilities were set on fire, the communicate said.

Attack Dover Again

At Dover, DNB elaborated, Nazi bombers dived 3,000 feet through the clouds and scattered seventy bombs on British troop concentrations. They encountered no resistance, the agency said, and reported that the German fliers, zooming back to the cover of the clouds, saw fires breaking out below.

Great Yarmouth was also effectively bombed, the communicate said, and storehouses and sheds were set afire. There were fires, also, and explosions in the Thames region.

Other German claims: Considerable destruction to Bristol harbor on the west coast.

Damage to airplane factories at Birmingham, Kingston and Rochester.

Darkening of numerous searchlight positions.

Bomb Open Fields

The communicate said British fliers had dropped bombs in open fields in north, west and southwest Germany and on the residential section of two southwestern German cities where some houses were hit and two civilians killed and two wounded.

The submarine which claimed destruction of the destroyer also reported sinking a 7,000-ton merchant vessel.

(There are two destroyers of the Viscount class, the Viscount and the Viceroy, 1,120 tons, with regular complements of 134 men.

which he was not competent to discuss.

"But we ought to have a whole string of bases along the islands guarding the Panama canal," he declared.

Such a string would conceivably include Trinidad, near the northern coast of South America; Barbados, about 200 miles to the northeast, and the Bahamas islands about the same distance east of Miami, Fla.

May Cancel War Debt

Questioned about methods of paying Britain for leases on the base sites, the Senator pointed out that no official plan had been announced yet but that various methods had been suggested in different quarters, among them reduction or cancellation of the British war debt and transfer to Britain of fifty United States destroyers.

Whether the administration intends to acquire the leases without action by Congress has not yet been disclosed. Attorney General Jackson is understood to have given the cabinet an opinion last Friday on the legal questions involved.

When he announced at a press conference recently that negotiations for the acquisition of bases from the British were under way, President Roosevelt said the consideration had not yet been determined.

River Starts Running Backwards; Man Walks 616 Miles To Join Army

By GLADWIN HILL

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—It's great weather for walking. If you have any doubt, give a gander at this gallery of demon-bunion-debilities who turned up this week:

Glen Smith of Mudville, N. Y., walked two miles to turn in a fire alarm!

J. A. Coffey, a Linville, N. C. farmer, walked thirty miles to report that floods would delay his produce a few days.

Peter Sonts of Troy, N. Y., walked two round trips to New York city—a total of 616 miles—seeing about enlisting in the army.

And Julius Kovack of San Francisco walked 2,500 miles to attend the American Legion Convention in Boston.

Anybody want to go for a walk?

Apparently the weather was invigorating all around, because there were a variety of other astonishing accomplishments.

One Paul Cotteau swam 114 miles off Florida.

Angel Stevens, 24, a Los Angeles stenographer, learned to fly an airplane between dawn and sunset the same day.

Two Milwaukee softball teams played 1,250 innings in 19 hours; a Lacrosse, Wis., chicken "rode the rods" on a freight train for 157 miles;

Dizzy doings hither and yon—The Cashie river in North Carolina began running backwards; two turkey gobblers in Danville, Ill., tossed a hen out of the nest and began hatching the eggs themselves.

... and an Elizabeth, N. J., mail wrote officials asking to have his taxes increased.

A man broke into the Corbin, Ky., jail ... and because so many prisoners were digging through the walls of the ancient Oconee county, S. C., jail, authorities decided finally to hire a night watchman!

Gag of the week: A Cleveland citizen, complaining about heavy trucks going through his street, declared they shook the house so much that:

"If you're drinking a glass of beer, you get a new head on it."

MAIL TRAIN LOOTED BY BANDITS

Police file handcuffs off Louis Weiler, mail clerk aboard the Albany-bound train robbed of mail sacks which police believe contained large sums of money. The daring holdup was executed with precision by six bandits who handcuffed the clerks and carried the sacks to a waiting automobile as the train rested in a New York City station.

Burke-Wadsworth

dicted the program would cost in this fiscal year.

The Democratic leader said it was his opinion the army ought to go ahead with the preliminaries of setting up the registration program as soon as possible although it could not actually begin operations until funds became available.

The measure calls for registration of all men twenty-one to thirty years of age. Men to be trained would be selected from this group by lot.

As the bill now stands, there is no limitation on the number of men who may be trained. This is left to the discretion of the president.

Senator Austin of Vermont, acting minority leader and a supporter of the Burke-Wadsworth bill, said that there was strong Republican support for a limitation.

Amendment Strongly Backed

He predicted that most Republicans would vote for an amendment by Senator White (R-Me.) providing that only the number of men for whose training funds had been specifically voted could be inducted into the army.

A pending amendment by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) would fix the number to be trained at 800,000.

Senator Barkley told his colleagues he favored an amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) setting the number of trainees in service at any one time at 1,000,000.

Meanwhile, the House Military Committee marked time on its own version of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. Members said that before they acted they wanted to see what form of the measure was finally approved by the Senate.

More than a score of amendments are pending to the Senate bill, but both Barkley and Austin expressed confidence that few material changes would be made in the measure.

Most controversy is expected over a proposal by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) to delay actual conscription until January.

July 5 and, McNutt said, is being carried out in 283 cities.

The Wirtz-Raver report, urging establishment of defense industries in the northwest, noted that the western states produced many minerals useful to the national defense. On this point, they said:

"The products of western mines, vital to the war industries in the east—copper, lead, zinc, mercury, tungsten, molybdenum, etc.—have to move east 2,000 miles for processing and fabrication. Part of this obviously has to return 3,000 to 6,000 miles in the form of materials and supplies for the defense outposts of the Pacific coast, Alaska, and Hawaii."

Teachers Named For Fifty-One County Schools

Miss Shires Will Succeed Mrs. Upham; Four Small Schools Closed

Appointment of teachers for ten high, thirty elementary and nine rural white schools and two colored schools, and the resignation of three instructors is announced by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools.

Principals for the Beall elementary school, Frostburg, and Maryland avenue school, Cumberland, are unnamed at present and appointments will be made at McCoolle Hill street (Frostburg), Midland and Jackson (Lonaconing), the superintendent said.

Miss Dorothy W. Shires is the new principal at West Side school, replacing Mrs. Margaret Upham, who has been retired. Mrs. Upham, a teacher for twenty-eight years, has been principal at West Side school since 1918.

Resignation of Miss Alice Hass, physical education teacher at Allegheny high school and Mrs. Mary Connell Vandegrift, principal at Maryland avenue, who has accepted a teaching post in Prince Georges county, also has been announced.

Eight Schools Closed

Midland will abandon the junior high department and become an elementary school. Mt. Savage high school students will go to Frostburg.

Superintendent Kopp said that due to the fact that the new Frostburg high school will not be ready for occupancy until November, classes will be conducted in the present building on a two-session basis, the first from 8 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and the second from 12:45 to 5 p. m. Schools will open Thursday, September 5 and on the preceding day at 9 a. m., teachers will meet at the Allegheny high school where Edgar M. Gerlach, warden at the Federal Correctional Institution, Danbury, Conn., will speak. His subject will be "The Right To Be Heard, Bad Boy, What Now?"

Students from Midland in the senior high group may go to either Frostburg or Lonaconing, the superintendent said.

Muma Brothers Out in Front At Yacht Club

Yesterday the boys lost a race in their Libeth to Freddie Steiding and Frank M. Wilson, who were sailing Miss Georgia Dixon's and Dr. Arthur P. Dixon's, Rebel. The two top boats of the fleet now stand Libeth 1613 and Rebel 1536.

Three races were sailed at the club yesterday. In the high point score race for Snipes, twelve boats went over the line. After Rebel and Libeth came John H. Mordock's Catalog II, back in contending position after a prolonged slump. Richard C. Holben was crew on the 1939 club championship boat. Dr. Donald B. Grove and George Martz sailed Dr. Grove's Holiday into fourth place and fifth went to John B. Steiding in his Aloah.

Jim O'Connell's Small Fry, sailed by the owner and Miss Virginia Boyle, was sixth and William J. Cramer, Jr., with his father as crew brought their Leah-Louise into seventh place. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Hodd's Sally was eighth, while Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Claytor of Schenley Park, Pa., were ninth in their unnamed Snipe. Dr. and Mrs. Howard M. Tolson in their Windward Ho were tenth and David H. Murrie's Esquire Tommy Moore and his sister were last in Captain Kidd.

Leah-Louise Wins
The race for women skippers went to Mrs. William J. Cramer, Jr., in Mrs. Cramer's Leah-Louise. Dr. Grove's Holiday was second, sailed by Miss Gladys LaRue and Mrs. Frederick M. Hodd. John Steiding's Aloah, sailed by Mrs. Howard M. Tolson and Miss Moore, was third and Jim O'Connell's Small Fry, sailed by Miss Virginia Boyle and Miss Betty Tuebner, completed the small field.

In an open event, John Steiding and Miss Moore won in Aloah. Libeth was second again with the Muma brothers giving way and Mr. and Mrs. Hodd sailed the boat. The Sally was third, sailed by the Muma brothers. Small Fry was fourth sailed by Jim O'Connell and George Martz. The National One Design sloop, Cagey, sailed by its owner, Eugene Pickut and Miss Betty Tuebner, was fifth and Rebel, sailed by Dr. Dixon and Freddie Steiding, was sixth. Mr. and Mrs. Claytor were seventh and Elmer B. Gower's Esquire was eighth, sailed by David H. Murrie. Dr. and Mrs. Tolson's Windward Ho was ninth while Mr. and Mrs. William J. Cramer, Jr., in Leah-Louise, did not finish the race.

Races Scheduled
A series of races is planned for Saturday, Sunday and Monday of the Labor day weekend, including the series of three to decide the Commodore Frank M. Wilson trophy. A record number of reservations have been made at the club and many persons owning summer homes on Turkey Neck Peninsula, on which the club is located, are planning parties for the weekend. A barbecue dinner will be given by the club next Sunday night for members and guests.

Following is the standing of all boats as the final weekend starts:

1—Libeth 1613

Money and Brains Are Needed by College Student

Easy To Enter Many Educational Institutions with Enough Cash

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

When I consider the thousands of young men and women going to college this fall I must think of the many among them who don't really want to go but are sent. In contrast, I must also think and with more feeling, of the thousands of other youths, bright youths, who would like so much to go to college but cannot for want of money.

Excepting in a night college, it is practically impossible today for a young man or woman to earn his or her way through college while in college, with less than half the regular college cost available; and it is harder for the girl than the boy, as a rule.

I once visited a fine, high-grade college which covers the first two college years (junior college) to enter which a student must not only have ranked in the upper third of his class in high school but must also be "poor." Yet he must have at least two hundred dollars cash a year at his command and be willing to work-to-earn several hours a day.

Money or Mentality?
Although it is growing harder and harder year by year to qualify scholastically in order to enter a first-class college, it is easier to enter a great many colleges without brains than without money. Certainly a good many young men and women do go to college with more money than mentality.

Ability to enter college is largely dependent on family finances. Studies of the American Youth Commission in Pennsylvania and elsewhere indicate that only about half the high school graduates of America with unusual ability, actually go to college. In other words, half the brightest youth of America are either too poor to go to college, merely think they are, or don't care.

Only a few of this half, perhaps, "don't care." More merely "think they are too poor," but most actually "are too poor." Some who push the wheelbarrow or peel potatoes ought to be in college and some in college had better be pushing a wheelbarrow or peeling potatoes.

It was very painful to me to have to answer in the negative the deserv-ing young woman who wrote the following letter:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I crave a college education but I cannot meet the necessary expenses. At present I am working on N.Y.A. while Mother, a widow, is sewing on W.P.A. Even our combined income has not permitted any savings. Thus I cannot get financial aid from home.

"Do you know of any institution where I could work my way through? I rank in the upper one-third of the graduating class and I am most willing to work faithfully at school and at work."

Education for the Deserving
Enough sufficient search, a place might be found for this deserving girl to work her way through college, but not for the thousands of other deserving youths like her.

How far should the public go in providing higher education for all bright, industrious youth at public expense? Should it be the public junior college, for two years? Should it be four years of college? Of course, some citizens with ample private funds, believe the senior high school should charge tuition. But what about the apparent economic value of brains and their development to a democracy?

Suppose, however, all the bright youths of America went to college. Then if college graduates continued to aspire only to the white collar jobs where would we get brainy people enough to do all the other essential jobs? If college education more often helped to dignify labor with the hands as well as head, the public might grow more ready to provide opportunities to attend college for all who have superior mentality. What do you think about it?

I still have some book lists about college.

owner, Eugene Pickut and Miss Betty Tuebner, was fifth and Rebel, sailed by Dr. Dixon and Freddie Steiding, was sixth. Mr. and Mrs. Claytor were seventh and Elmer B. Gower's Esquire was eighth, sailed by David H. Murrie. Dr. and Mrs. Tolson's Windward Ho was ninth while Mr. and Mrs. William J. Cramer, Jr., in Leah-Louise, did not finish the race.

Questions and Answers
C. N. Astoria, Long Island — "I have bunions on both my feet. Do you advise an operation? I am 48 years old. My husband says I will become a cripple if I have them removed as I am too old."

Answer—Certainly operations can be done successfully for bunions, and 48 is not too old an age for such an operation. In fact, bunions do not come on until middle age, so all operations are done late in life. If the orthopedic surgeon, and he should be selected with more care for a bunion than for an appendicitis operation, does not interfere with the head of the metatarsal bone too much, the gait afterwards will be natural and painless. Your husband should wake up—48 is the time of life. Maybe he is trying to get your goat.

Poor Vision Is Often the Cause Of Bad Grades

Ten Percent of Children with Low Ratings Have Visual Defects

By LOGAN CLENDENNING, M. D.

One of the big teachers in a grade school department in a nearby university was giving paper and pencil tests to children to determine their I.Q. ratings. She had her entire class examined and found she had what she considered an unusually large group of low ratings. In talking this over with another teacher it was suggested that this same group be examined by a number of the staff of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Nearly half the group had visual defects sufficient to interfere with their seeing critically and accurately.

A Definite Handicap
This is a rather high finding, but taking large groups of children with low intelligence ratings, it is found that about ten per cent have visual defects which account for their low scores in intelligence tests.

Supervision of school examinations for visual efficiency should be made much more exact and comprehensive than it now is. In some school systems the entire program for eye health is based on whether a child is able to read a 20-20 chart. Not much attention is paid to what kind of a chart it is, whether one drawn to the scale of Snellen measurements or not, nor whether the tests are made according to controlled and consistent standards of lighting. This, of course, is not adequate if any large amount of good is to be done to directing improvements in vision in our schools.

Far-sightedness Common
It would be a safe guess to assume that if the majority of school nurses were asked what visual defect is commonest among our school children they would reply near-sightedness. But the experienced school ophthalmologist would reply far-sightedness.

The most common eye difficulties found among elementary school children are:

1. Errors of refraction of various degrees occurring in the following order of frequency, far-sightedness, hyperopia, astigmatism, and near-sightedness, myopia.

2. Failure of the two eyes to work together, forms of strabismus or squint—muscle intolerance.

3. Eye disease affecting the different parts of the eye such as corneal opacities, iritis, recurrent pink eye, ingrowing eye lashes.

4. Congenital and hereditary diseases of the eye.

Color blindness may go on for years, even to adult life, without the person who is color blind or anyone else being aware of it. Your eye evidently does not realize any defect in his vision. Yet we are told he is totally deficient in color discrimination and sees the whole world as plain gray. Brown, red, blue and white details are missing in the dog's world. The child with color blindness has the same thing.

Yea, much of his proficiency in school work may depend on his color discrimination.

Teachers Named For Fifty-One County Schools

Miss Shires Will Succeed Mrs. Upham; Four Small Schools Closed

Appointment of teachers for ten high, thirty elementary and nine rural white schools and two colored schools, and the resignation of three instructors is announced by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools.

Principals for the Beall elementary school, Frostburg, and Maryland avenue school, Cumberland, are unnamed at present and appointments will be made at McCoolle, Hill street (Frostburg), Midland and Jackson (Lonaconing), the superintendent said.

Miss Dorothy W. Shires is the new principal at West Side school, replacing Mrs. Margaret Upham, who has been retired. Mrs. Upham, a teacher for twenty-eight years, has been principal at West Side school since 1918.

Resignation of Miss Alice Hass, girls' physical education teacher at Allegheny high school and Mrs. Mary Connell Vandegrift, principal at Maryland avenue, who has accepted a teaching post in Prince Georges county, also has been announced.

Eight Schools Closed
Four one-room schools to be closed are Borden Mine, Shaft, Carlos and Lord with the pupils of Lord being transferred to Midland and the others of the closed schools to Beall elementary. Two-room school closings are Grahamstown, Ocean, Midlothian and Allegheny Mines. Grahamstown pupils will be transferred to Hill street, Frostburg, and those of the other schools to Beall elementary. Midland will abandon the junior high department and become an elementary school. Mt. Savage high school students will go to Frostburg.

Superintendent Kopp said that due to the fact that the new Frostburg high school will not be ready for occupancy until November, classes will be conducted in the present building on a two-session basis, the first from 8 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and the second from 12:45 to 5 p. m. Schools will open Thursday, September 5 and on the preceding day at 9 a. m., teachers will meet at the Allegheny high school where Edgar M. Gerlach, warden at the Federal Correctional Institution, Danbury, Conn., will speak. His subject will be "The Right to Be Heard, Bad Boy, What Now?"

Students from Midland in the senior high group may go to either Frostburg or Lonaconing, the superintendent said.

Five Granted Leaves
Teachers granted leaves of absence are Victor H. Baumann, Port Hill, who has been replaced by Seth W. Henderson; Mrs. Margaret E. Witherup Long and E. William Noland, of Allegheny high; Lois W. Three races were sailed at the club yesterday. In the high point score race for Snipes, twelve boats went over the line. After Rebel and Libsith came John H. Mordock's Catalog II, back in contending position after a prolonged slump. Richard C. Holben was crew on the 1939 club championship boat. Dr. Donald B. Grove and George Martz sailed Dr. Grove's Holiday into fourth place and fifth went to John B. Steiding in his Aloah.

Jim O'Connell's Small Fry, sailed by the owner and Miss Virginia Boyle, was sixth and William J. Cramer, Jr., with his father as crew brought their Leah-Louise into seventh place. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Hodd's Sally was eighth, while Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Claytor of Schenley Park, Pa., were ninth in their un-named Snipe. Dr. and Mrs. Howard M. Tolson in their Windward Ho were tenth and David H. Murrie was eleventh in Elmer B. Gower's Esquire. Tommy Moore and his sister were last in Captain Kidd.

Leah-Louise Wins
The race for women skippers went to Mrs. William J. Cramer, Jr., and Mrs. Henry K. Duke, Jr., in Mrs. Cramer's Leah-Louise. Dr. Grove's Holiday was second, sailed by Miss Gladys LaRue and Mrs. Frederick M. Hodd. John Steiding's Aloah, sailed by Mrs. Howard M. Tolson and Miss Moore, was third and Jim O'Connell's Small Fry, sailed by Miss Virginia Boyle and Miss Betty Tuebner, completed the small field.

In an open event, John Steiding and Miss Moore won in Aloah. Libsith was second again with the Muma brothers giving way and Mr. and Mrs. Hodd sailing the boat. The Sally was third, sailed by the Muma brothers. Small Fry was fourth sailed by Jim O'Connell and George Martz. The National One Design Sloop, Cagay, sailed by its owner, Eugene Picout and Miss Betty Tuebner, was fifth and Rebel, sailed by Dr. Dixon and Freddie Steiding, was sixth. Mr. and Mrs. Claytor were seventh and Elmer B. Gower's Esquire was eighth, sailed by David H. Murrie. Dr. and Mrs. Tolson's Windward Ho was ninth while Mr. and Mrs. William J. Cramer, Jr., in Leah-Louise, did not finish the race.

Races Scheduled
A series of races is planned for Saturday, Sunday and Monday of the Labor day weekend, including the series of three to decide the Commodore Frank M. Wilson trophy. A record number of reservations have been made at the club and many persons owning summer homes on Turkey Neck Peninsula, on which the club is located are planning parties for the weekend. A barbecue dinner will be given by the club next Sunday night for members and guests.

Money and Brains Are Needed by College Student

Easy To Enter Many Educational Institutions with Enough Cash

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
When I consider the thousands of young men and women going to college this fall I must think of the many among them who don't really want to go but are sent. In contrast, I must also think, and with more feeling, of the thousands of other youths, bright youths, who would like so much to go to college but cannot for want of money.

Excepting in a night college, it is practically impossible today for a young man or woman to earn his or her way through college while in college, with less than half the regular college cost available; and it is harder for the girl than the boy, as a rule.

I once visited a fine, high-grade college which covers the first two college years (junior college) to enter which a student must not only have ranked in the upper third of his class in high school but must also be "poor." Yet he must have at least two hundred dollars cash a year at his command and be willing to work-to-earn several hours a day.

Money or Mentality?
Although it is growing harder and harder year by year to qualify scholastically in order to enter a first-class college, it is easier to enter a great many colleges without brains than without money. Certainly a good many young men and women do go to college with more money than mentality.

Ability to enter college is largely dependent on family finances. Studies of the American Youth Commission in Pennsylvania and elsewhere indicate that only about half the high school graduates of America with unusual ability, actually go to college. In other words, half the brightest youth of America are either too poor to go to college, merely think they are or don't care. Only a few of this half, perhaps, "don't care." More merely "think they are too poor," but most actually "are too poor." Some who push the wheelbarrow or peel potatoes ought to be in college and some in college had better be pushing a wheelbarrow or peeling potatoes.

It was very painful to me to have to answer in the negative the deserving young woman who wrote the following letter:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I crave a college education but I cannot meet the necessary expenses.

"At present I am working on N.Y.A. while Mother, a widow, is sewing on W.P.A. Even our combined income has not permitted any savings. Thus I cannot get financial aid from home.

"Do you know of any institution where I could work my way through? I rank in the upper one-third of the graduating class and I am most willing to work faithfully at school and at work."

Education for the Deserving
Through sufficient search, a place might be found for this deserving girl to work her way through college, but not for the thousands of other deserving youths like her.

How far should the public go in providing higher education for all bright, industrious youth at public expense? Should it be the public junior college, for two years? Should it be four years of college? Of course, some citizens with ample private funds, believe the senior high school should charge tuition. But what about the apparent economic value of brains and their development to a democracy?

Suppose, however, all the bright youths of America went to college. Then if college graduates continued to aspire only to the white collar jobs where would we get brainy people enough to do all the other essential jobs? If college education more often helped to dignify labor with the hands as well as head, the public might grow more ready to provide opportunities to attend college for all who have superior mentality.

What do you think about it? I still have some book lists about college.

The Real Bottleneck Is At The White House

PROTESTS are rising in all parts of the country against the confusion and delay that block national defense preparations.

The people are discovering that the mere appropriation of billions does not produce airplanes, tanks, ships and guns. Now they are asking, "What's the matter with Washington?"

The answer, in a word, is: Roosevelt. National defense is tangled in the same coil of confusion, politics and incompetence that has enmeshed the whole New Deal for nearly eight years.

The United States has been mismanaged in governmental affairs ever since Franklin D. Roosevelt became president. Now the safety of the country is subject to the same mismanagement.

The factories of the country are not at work under new contracts which should have been made in consequence of the billions appropriated by Congress. Hardly any mass-production contracts for airplanes, tanks, anti-aircraft, coast defense or field guns, or other major equipment have been made.

Why? Because of confusion of counsel, red tape, changes of plans, indecision, conflicts of authority, political chicanery and other New Deal methods of mismanaging the nation's business. The key of the log-jam is the White House. There is the bottleneck that chokes all progress toward national defense.

Not until Wendell Willkie is in charge can the country expect to see rapid and steady progress in arming the United States. It is a colossal job, entirely beyond the ability and experience of the spendthrift who squanders billions while dallying with the destiny of the nation.

Much mischief and grief is in sight during the remaining months of the Roosevelt regime. Americans must be patient. They must wait until November before ordaining a change. Then, beginning in January, they can have the satisfaction of seeing their country move toward its rightful place as the strongest power in the world—a nation whose affairs will be under wise direction, so that it will neither do nor suffer wrong.

More Bureaucracy Means Less Liberty

PROBABLY no more conservative element of the nation's population could be found than that which constitutes the membership of the Grange. This is the oldest organization of farm folk and for many years has stood for the highest principles, not only of affairs directly affecting agriculture, but for those pertaining to good citizenship in the broadest sense.

Since its institution, the Grange has made much of its nonpartisan position in politics. But this has not kept it from exercising an important influence in politics and there has been little division of opinion among the members. They have been uniformly with the party that proved most constructive. Grangers never have been political hobby chasers.

A characteristic editorial appears in The National Grange Clip Sheet, issued at the headquarters of the National Grange in Washington. It calls attention to the fact that the new census figures show that the nation's capital has made a remarkable growth in the last ten years. Its 1930 population was 486,869. The 1940 figure is 683,153. And it emphasizes that this gain of 36 per cent would have been as much more if government workers and their families living in nearby Maryland and Virginia had been counted as belonging to the capital.

"The more government workers enrolled," says the Grange editor, "the higher taxes will go; the more power the federal government arrogates to itself, the less power there is left for the states and individuals; the greater the army of bureaucrats becomes, the greater the decline in the liberties enjoyed by the whole people."

New Deal Inconsistency Has Another Example

ANOTHER REMINDER of the inconsistency of the New Deal and its agencies comes to hand in an editorial in the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune. It never was more convincingly demonstrated, it says, than in the request of the Tennessee Valley Authority for an appropriation of $25,000,000 to install generating capacity for supplying current to the Aluminum Company of America, a request that has received the support of Edward R. Stettinius, of the National Defense Advisory Commission.

It would, of course, be prudent to provide funds for such a development in view of the obvious need for speeding up the manufacture of aluminum. But it is a significant fact that when the Aluminum Company of America three years ago petitioned the Federal Power Commission for permission to build a 500,000-kilowatt hydroelectric plant of its own on the Yadkin river in North Carolina it was rather unceremoniously turned down. That capacity would be available now, when it is sorely needed, if the commission had authorized construction. Its refusal was based entirely on political considerations, for at the same time the administration was holding conferences and talking of a grid system to meet a possible shortage of electric power in a national emergency.

Now the government charges that one of the "bottlenecks" in airplane production is a shortage of aluminum. The industry is castigating because it has not provided sufficient capacity for production. Had the administration been as much concerned about increasing production three years ago as it was in "punishing the Mellons," there would be no shortage today, as is alleged.

But the Tribune says it is the same old story. "The New Deal has conceived it to be good politics—good vote-getting material—" it says, "to attack business and industry, and to place every possible obstacle in their path, while at the same time criticizing them for failure to increase their productive capacities, a failure based solely upon a lack of confidence in the good intentions of the administration."

The New Deal notion that nothing or nobody else can be right is peculiar, indeed.

Another New Deal Break-Up Rumored

ONE OF THE STORIES coming out of Washington which bears some of the earmarks of authenticity is that the intimate circle of counselors around the president, so diligently advertised through the years by the newspaper correspondents—particularly by flying horse columnists—is on the point of breaking up.

The most prominent members of this circle, after Harry Hopkins, seemed to be Thomas Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, two cronies who came over to Washington from New York in the early days of the New Deal and were thereafter credited with having an unusual hand in shaping national policies. Corcoran holds the office of "special counsel" to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Cohen serves as counsel to the National Power Policy Committee. Apparently neither ranked as close to the White House as Harry Hopkins, but they have been considered very close. They are said to have written several of the major New Deal measures which Congress earlier accepted as a subordinate accepts orders from a superior.

White House compliance with the counsels of Corcoran and Cohen is alleged to have been one of the factors which cooled Farley's ardor for the New Deal considerably.

No immediate reason is assigned for the rumored severance of Corcoran and Cohen from White House favor, but the rumor is given much credence in Washington nevertheless.

The Mushroom Is Outdone By the Payroll Boom

FIVE YEARS AGO Uncle Sam's payroll of civil employees carried a total of 680,546. That registered a new high in peace time. It evoked a great deal of comment, but it was explained by some of those responsible that the limit had been reached, that thereafter there would be a downward trend. As it turns out, the payroll boom had just started. The Civil Service Commission now reports the number has gone beyond the million mark for the first time in the country's history.

The figure for the latter half of June was 1,011,066, compared with the World War high mark of 917,960. The total will continue to rise as the defense program expands. But though eighty per cent of the 85,806 increase in the last year is alleged to be accounted for by the defense program, that is a small part of the 330,520 added since early 1935. Tens of thousands of these get jobs by political preferment with the expectation of later being blanketed with Civil Service status. The political implications of the expansion are obvious.

It is now charged that the drive for military conscription was started at a secret meeting in New York. It is marvelous how many things start at secret meetings in New York.

Canada and the United States are becoming mutually defense-minded. The chances are though their border will continue to be the longest unfortified one in the world.

Almost any day now we expect to find that an over-cautious censor has changed the latest dispatch to read, "in the war being fought somewhere-in-the-world."

Light-weight two-piece suits are popular this summer in Wall Street, according to a style writer. Hey, what's become of the "vested interests"?

You Are a Person!

My MARSHALL MASLIN

I apologize but I'm not sorry. I stared at you without knowing it. I didn't intend to be rude when I craned my neck to see what book you were reading. . . . I was just wondering about it. I can not put it clearly into words, but it seemed to me you are the sort of fellow, with character and a definite personality, that I like.

Perhaps you think you are much like other people. But that's just modesty on your part, because you aren't. . . . There's a sparkle in your eyes, a quirk of humor about your mouth, that means you have laughed a-plenty in your lifetime, a little at people who make a great fuss about things more than a little about you. You are a PERSON!

That's a good chin you have. I wouldn't call it "determined" because most of those stick-out chins mean little more than stubbornness. But yours is a solid sort of chin that can mind its own business and knows where it is going. . . . You know where you are going, too, most of the time. But you aren't pushing other people out of the way to get what you want. You wait your turn because you know everything in this world is not important. You aren't so set on having your own way all the time. You look at people with a goodhumored slant, and you don't take them or yourself too seriously.

You saw me looking at you and you raised your head and gave me a level look, and then went back to your reading. . . . Obviously you're not always wondering what people are thinking of you. Even if you knew I was spending these few minutes as I am, you wouldn't be bothered.

That's all I like about you. You are you, not trying to be anyone else. . . . You come to your corner, press the button, walk down the aisle, step from the street car, and pass from my sight forever. . . . You swing along and you round a corner and I see you no more. But though I'll not be seeing you again, I know you're living alertly, gallantly, wherever you may be. Touching people. Talking to them. Changing them in various ways. Laughing and grieving and sticking it out. Being yourself.

And I wish you luck, though you probably don't need it. You are one of the fortunate folk who never need help.

Defense Policy Is a Vital Need, Johnson Declares

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 — A month by month recounting of War department testimony before the congressional committee as to our military requirements would make a ludicrous showing — and it would be most unfair.

Hugh S. Johnson

It started with preparation for an army of about 400,000 and it has now reached a projection of 4,000,000. In comparison with cold precision of Nazi military planning, it makes our general staff look like a bunch of bush-leaguers.

The answer to that is this, it is not the business of a general staff to plan policy. When these military estimates were first made, our government was giving no attention to "hemisphere defense" and the great "safety belt" around the Americas or the conventions of Panama and Havana.

Lightning-Like Changes

Step by step in the rapidly expanding policy of intervention everywhere, our general staff has been confronted with new and lightning-like changes in policy. There is this difference between the harnessing of Nazi foreign policy with Nazi military preparation — that Hitler planned nothing on foreign policy that his general staff hadn't been told to prepare in military strength and wasn't given time to prepare. In our case, the whole surprising brain-storm shift in a constantly increasing foreign policy of threat and aggression, has proceeded with no regard whatever to our military preparation to make it good and with no sufficient allowance of time and money to do so.

General Marshall's talk about an army of three to four million men was wholly based on a new diplomatic theory that we are to police every American country from the North Pole to Cape Horn. That theory is utterly fantastic and impossible. We can't afford it, couldn't do it and have no business indulging in any such popular deceptions and ludicrous international posturing.

Definite Policy Requested

It is about time that this government settled down and decided what its foreign policy is going to be, and more precisely, as controlling that, exactly what policy it can enforce, without absurdity and possible disaster, within the real life and reasonable limits of its present and immediately potential strength on land, sea and in the air.

In that connection, the immediate controlling nubbin is naval and political policy in the Pacific. As between our necessary defensive policy of remaining dominant on both American coasts as far as Natal in Brazil and in addition to that of maintaining threatening attitude in Asia, Indo-China and the East Indies, there is a difference of unestimated billions of dollars of expense and of comparative safety as contrasted with sprawling all over the map and constantly risking not only our prestige but our peace and even our existence.

Scarcely Debated

This is a question that has been scarcely even debated. For what stake, reason or obligation are we becoming so insecure in the Atlantic because the bulk of our fleet is in the Pacific that Mr. Bullitt can tell our people that we are in as grave danger of invasion as was France a year ago?

The foundation of that part of our policy should be brought promptly into discussion and thrashed out to some understandable and defensible conclusion. There is no space to discuss this in this short column—or in a dozen columns—and continued columnar discussion just doesn't click. But, in all this dazling confusion of kaleidoscopic change and mountainous expansion of debt and taxes there is no fundamental of more importance or more poignantly needing the immediate attention of the American people than just why and how we have to defend the status quo in Asia as well as in America. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Roosevelt Stakes Political Fortunes On the Draft after Long Hesitancy

A Volunteer Training Corps

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

With each passing day the agitation for peace-time conscription before military enlistment is given a fair chance seems more and more unreasonable. Young men are now enlisting in the Army at the rate of nearly 400,000 a year. From some parts of the country come reports that volunteers are actually being turned down, because recruiting offices have filled their "quotas." And this is occurring in spite of the three-year enlistment term and pay of only $21 a month! There is every reason to believe that if the term of service were reduced to one year and the pay raised to $30 a month, the army would gain as many men voluntarily as the Burke-Wadsworth bill would draft by compulsion.

Some of the generals object to one-year enlistment in the regular army. Is there any reason under the sun why a separate volunteer corps could not be created on a one-year basis? That, in fact, is exactly what Senator Taft has just proposed.

Under the Taft plan a special volunteer training corps of 1,500,000 men would be authorized by Congress. Volunteers would be trained for one year and receive regular Army pay—increased from $21 to $30 a month. After completing their year's training, they would enter an enlisted reserve corps. Those who had not finished high school or college would be encouraged to take military training courses. In this way, young Americans could complete their high school or college work while remaining on the army payroll and continuing to receive army instruction. While finishing their schooling they would be fitting themselves for a high calibre of military service in case of war.

This is a really constructive plan for meeting the defense emergency. It shows common sense and it is in line with American tradition. The real brains in Congress are now hard at work devising a system of voluntary enlistment which would provide all the claimed advantages of conscription with some of its many drawbacks. The effort is in refreshing contrast to the parrot-like propaganda of the other side that "we must have the Burke-Wadsworth bill or nothing."

Quotable Quotes

By Representative M. Duncan, Democrat, of Missouri

I have heard some criticism from certain sources about the people in the lower brackets not being required to pay enough taxes, that the percentages were so much smaller than those in the higher brackets. Mr. Chairman, let us not forget that these are the people who are paying about 75 per cent of these excise taxes. They are the people whose incomes are being totally consumed in the cost of living.

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—At this press conference, President Roosevelt went the whole way—came out squarely and forcefully for conscription.

Mark Sullivan

To the newspaper men it was, to some degree, a surprise. For, during some eight weeks past, Mr. Roosevelt has seemed to "pushfoot" a little, about all aspects of the war, as if he feared to seem too aggressive. But today he put himself squarely behind conscription.

At first, we did not think he would. He began by saying the only news he had for us was about his signing a bill to regulate investment companies. Since the bill had passed both Houses of Congress unanimously, there was no great news in his signing it.

After that one announcement, Mr. Roosevelt said there was no news. Three times, in differing words, he repeated that there was absolutely no news. He seemed to have a kind of truculently defensive manner—as if he anticipated what was going to happen, and had no hearty stomach for it, but was going to go through with it all the same.

From someone came the expected question—what was Mr. Roosevelt's attitude about the conscription bill pending in Congress? His reply was instant and strong. He wanted the bill, and he was absolutely opposed to further delay. The bill had been introduced June 20. Today (August 25) there had been no action in either House. Mr. Roosevelt wanted action now.

He expanded on the need. He said he had with him a memorandum from Secretary of War Stimson, about the necessity for conscription, and conscription promptly. This memorandum, Mr. Roosevelt referred to frequently. But he did not refer to it with the manner of a man reciting somebody else's argument. Nor did he do it with an air of passing the responsibility to the secretary of war. He made the points as his own, took the responsibility himself. True, he had throughout the half-hour or so, the same manner of defensive truculence, as if he knew he was doing something daring, but was going to go through with it.

B. V. D.'s in Stores

He met the various objections to conscription. And met also those objections which say that even if conscription may be necessary later, there is no immediate urgency for it right now. To the objection that we do not yet have the equipment for an immense number of soldiers, Mr. Roosevelt replied, convincingly, that we have, or can readily assemble, as much equipment as will suffice for the early period of training. Of rifles we have plenty. As to clothing, he, with his gift for the familiar and concrete, used as an illustration B. V. D.'s. Maybe there are not actually in the army stores an immense supply of B. V. D.'s. But there are plenty in the haberdashery shops and in manufacturers' stocks, until the regular flow of army orders gets under way. Again, with his unflinching gift for the colloquial, he said there is need for training just for the sake of training. Everybody has soft muscles, the newspaper men before him have soft muscles, he himself has soft muscles. The conscripted trainees would have soft muscles. They will need weeks of training, just to make them equal to a march of 30 miles a day, which is the requirement created by modern war.

Training Rudimentary

There is need for time, he said, to familiarize recruits with the many kinds of intricate new special equipment the army uses—"walkie-talkies," the portable field radio sets, carried on the backs of soldiers; "detectors" of the sound of enemy airplanes. Training in co-operation, between air troops and land troops, will take time. In all this sort of thing, Mr. Roosevelt said, and emphasized, America is rudimentary. Again he used a familiar illustration. When Rockne was football trainer at Notre Dame, he had to have at the beginning of the season far more than enough men for one football eleven, he had to have as many as forty-four from which to select eleven.

This strong urging of prompt conscription by Mr. Roosevelt is a change after weeks of equivocal hesitation. Perhaps there has been inner conflict between the two personalities into which Mr. Roosevelt is now divided—Mr. Roosevelt the president, and Mr. Roosevelt the candidate for a third term. Between those two many a conflict must go on these days in the intimacy of Mr. Roosevelt's study. On this occasion, Mr. Roosevelt the president seems to have won, for the time being at least. He is for conscription, prompt conscription, and he stakes his political fortunes on that.

Passage Uncertain

The bill needs Mr. Roosevelt's urging. In the Senate, there may possibly be a majority for it, though not certainly. In the House, informed persons say, there is a majority opposed to it. Some of the opposition is to conscription. Some is to conscription under Mr. Roosevelt as president. There is apprehension about what he might do with it, about what might follow it. There are men who would have voted for conscription readily under Woodrow Wilson, but hesitate under Franklin Roosevelt. There are men, including Democrats, who would be more reconciled to conscription if they knew that the President of the United States after next January would be Wendell Willkie.

Time Is Wasted On Inspections

From the Morgantown, W. Va., Post.

President Roosevelt is not only going to decline Wendell Willkie's invitation for a series of joint debates on national issues but he is also going to refrain from any political campaigning whatever. So he told the newspaper correspondents yesterday. He explained that he is too busy with national defense. That's the bunk, and there is no point in calling it a prettier name. As a matter of fact, you might go even further than that and still be short of the simple truth.

The time that Mr. Roosevelt has recently been spending in "inspection" of national defense was wasted as far as national defense is concerned. What did Mr. Roosevelt find out in his "inspection" that he didn't know already? And how much did the country profit from that "inspection"? What good does it do for Mr. Roosevelt to drive to a shell factory, sit comfortably in his automobile, and have a work-

Sweet Memorial Ceremony Is Held For Sea Victims

By EDWIN C. HILL

Only two of those brave fellows who go down to the sea in ships for their precarious living — fishermen of Gloucester, Massachusetts — were taken by the sea during the past year — the smallest number in the history of the fishing industry in Gloucester. Their names were Lawrence Doucette and Baltazar Fernandes — both swept from the decks of their boats by huge waves of stormy seas April 1.

And, as occurs every year, Gloucester remembers the other day nearly ten thousand people assembled at the Legion Building, marched to the Fishermen's Memorial statue, where wreaths were left and went on to the Blynman bridge where the formal exercises were held. Many of those in the silent reverent throng, were fishing captains and seamen from Gloucester fishing schooners — men with faces bronzed by sun and wind, and about their eyes the crow's feet common to sea-faring men.

Flowers from Gardens

Some were in shirt-sleeves, open at the neck. In their big arms, clutching by thick fingers unaccustomed to such delicate tasks were the sweet and familiar flowers of New England's gardens — variegated, phloxes, daisies, zinnias, snapdragons. They marched silently to the monument, the heroic figure of a fisherman — clad in oilskins, sou'-wester, gripping the steering wheel of his schooner. His eyes fixed on the far horizon, as body sways to the motion of ship, and his gaze searches beyond the harbor. Under his lifelike figure is a simple inscription, containing a world of grief and tragedy — and a world of courage and devotion to the will of God: "That Go Down to the Sea in Ships."

Old Song Is Sung

As Chaplain George E. Russell read out the names of Doucette and Fernandes, a little girl dropped flowers into the swiftly flowing stream. The crowd was utterly silent except for the low sobbing of women who will never see their men come sailing home. As the flowers danced upon the ripples and moved toward the monument, the heroic figure of a fisherman — clad in oilskins, sou'-wester, gripping the steering wheel of his schooner. His eyes fixed on the far horizon, as body sways to the motion of ship, and his gaze searches beyond the harbor. Under his lifelike figure is a simple inscription, containing a world of grief and tragedy — and a world of courage and devotion to the will of God: "That Go Down to the Sea in Ships."

Taps Sounded

The gay blossoms bobbed about on the choppy waters, occasionally describing swift circles as they were caught in swirls. They passed among pleasure boats out in harbor, where men and women bathing suits watched them from a distance, another answered for across the cove. And the brown-faced fishermen holding fast to the hands of their children, their wives, or an father or mother, gazed silently one another with the unspoken thought: "Next year — will it be me?" House Cleaning Is Started

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune.

It is to be hoped that William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has acted started to clean house in his suspending the charter of a United Sea Food Workers' union in New York city because the local violators his orders against reelecting Joe (Socks) Lanza, racketeer and former convict, as its business agent. It is high time that gangster methods were eliminated from organized labor and the organizations restored to respectability.

New York is only one of many cities in which local unions are controlled by racketeers who prey on members of the organization their own financial profit. Lack adequate accounting methods, strong-arm tactics which inspire fear among the members make possible.

The condition has been too long ignored by officials of the national organization with which the local are affiliated, creating the impression that the men at the top were not concerning themselves about the welfare of the rank and file.

The action of Green in suspending the charter of the New York local leads to the belief that it may be a housecleaning. It should not be confined to New York City man carry an armload of shells, the car so that the photograph can take a picture showing showing these shells to the press.

If our national defense needs be inspected, as it unquestionably does the federal government has its disposal plenty of qualified experts who can really inspect, then do the inspecting and let president tend to his own obligations.

Pupils' Transfer From Gilmore To Midland Hit

Citizens Oppose Proposed Change; Another Meeting Scheduled

In an interview with Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools, a committee composed of William J. Jenkins and Ralph Barber learned that rumors to this effect were true.

The committee reported that the children will be taken on buses and that every possible precaution will be taken for their protection and health.

BEFORE THE BLITZKRIEG
by RUPERT GRAYSON

READ THIS FIRST.

Gun Cotton, famous agent of Scotland Yard, arrives in London and delivers a mysterious small packet to his superior known as X, despite several attempts which have been made to take it from him. Tired and worn from his nerve wracking assignment, he takes a taxi to St. Christopher's Egyptian Bar-Baths. As he is about to enter, he notices a stranger, also entering the baths, who seems very apprehensive.

CHAPTER THREE

JUST AS Gun entered it, the door at the end of the passage in the Ray-Baths opened, and another client, robed similarly to himself, came through it and walked down toward the elevator. Gun saw that it was the man he had followed in, and who evidently took longer to undress than he did.

As he entered the elevator he shot a quick glance at Gun from below half-lowered lids. It was little more than a flash, but somehow Gun felt that it was furtive and suspicious.

Gun, adopting a casual, easy manner, spoke to him.

"Have you been through this rather extraordinary process before?"

It might have been imagination, but it seemed to Gun that the man started slightly when addressed, and then seemed to stiffen. It struck Gun that he was expecting something to come, and was wary for it.

"Process? Oh, the ray-bath! Yes, I have been here before."

"It's my first experience," Gun confided. "Tell me, are they any good—these ray-baths?"

"Good? Oh, yes, they are very good. Very refreshing and invigorating indeed."

The man spoke perfect English, yet from a certain gutturalness in the voice, and a stiffness in the phrasing, Gun deduced that he was a foreigner. Also he had paused perceptibly before using the word "invigorating."

The elevator had hardly started before it stopped again. Gun thought it was just a stop at another floor, but the elevator boy slid open the door and stood aside, and the other man hurried out. He did not seem to be at all eager to continue the conversation. It struck Gun that the descent was such a short one that the elevator might well have been dispensed with in favor of a flight of stairs. Then he realized that the use of the elevator meant that no one could leave—or enter—without the cognizance of the management.

A useful precaution in certain circumstances!

Gun wondered what the circumstances might be. . . .Dope? Opium smoking? The convention's suggestions ran through his mind which he immediately told himself was unduly suspicious. After all, the precaution of the elevator—if it WAS a precaution—might well be to keep undesirable people out, rather than to safeguard them in coming in. A place like this in the West End would be bound to attract such people, and if the place were being run on sound lines, it would be very necessary to guard against them.

Meanwhile Gun followed the other man along a short passage and into a large room, which seemed to be a sort of waiting room. The oriental note was sustained, and there were divans scattered about all over the room, which possessed a polished parquet floor, with thick oriental rugs and there. There were about half a dozen men in the room, all clad in the white bathrobes. Two or three were talking together, but the majority were sitting on the divans, looking at papers. The current newspapers and magazines which lay about struck another incongruous note.

Gun approached the other man once more, adopting the manner of a cautious, curious not over-intelligent individual.

"I say, what happens now? What do we hang around this place for?" he asked.

He had deliberately approached him from behind, and bare feet made no noise on the wooden floor. This time the fellow gave a quite palpable start. Plainly he was nervous, to say the least.

Gun had a sudden idea and took a quick glance as the doctor scribbled.

"Oh, first we see the doctor!" he replied shortly.

"The devil we do!" Gun exclaimed. "What for?"

"Oh, I don't know. It is a rule of the place, I suppose!"

The man spoke impatiently, and now he moved away.

Gun did not follow him, but watched him. Two newcomers entered the room, and the man gave them a quick but comprehensive glance.

All the same, it was becoming impressed upon him that there was not only something queer about the man he was interested in, but also about this place! Somehow there seemed to him to be something secret and sinister about all this oriental flim-flam. He sensed, as he so often did in certain circumstances, something menacing that lay behind all these thick carpets, oriental decorations and silent-footed attendants. . . .

There was one in the room now for the man's sake) eunuch, who stood stiffly by the door, but who, Gun observed, was studying with some attention everyone in the room. Another precaution against the admission of undesirables, or?

One by one the men who had been waiting had passed through the inner doorway, and had not returned. Fresh ones had dribbled in from the elevator, and each time Gun noted, the "foreigner," as he had now dubbed him, gave the newcomers a quick, comprehensive glance.

Now it was the foreigner's turn to pass through the inner door, beckoned in by a white-clad attendant. After about three minutes this individual appeared again, and beckoned Gun, who passed through the door and found himself in a medium-sized room fitted up as a doctor's office. For the first time since he had entered the building the oriental note had vanished.

The man who stood beside the desk was short and fat, and was clad in faultless morning coat and lavender striped trousers. He was a pink-and-white little man, and it hardly needed the stethoscope hanging round his neck to convey the fact that he was a doctor.

"Good morning!" this individual greeted him. "You are a new patient, are you not?"

The man spoke softly, but in a slightly thick voice, and again Gun sensed the foreigner, though he would have passed in most places as an Englishman all right.

"It's my first time here," was Gun's reply. "But I must say I hardly regard myself as a patient—nor did I expect a medical consultation was part of the performance!"

The doctor gave an eloquent shrug.

"Ah, 'patient,' it is just a word! But, of course, we assume that people do not come here unless they have a reason. A little tonic—a reviver. . . . Permit me!"

In response to his gesture Gun obediently opened his bathrobe, and the doctor nodded his approval of the figure thus revealed.

"There is not, I think, much wrong with you!"

"No?" Gun agreed. "I'm sorry to be such a disappointment."

"Ah, no, but we have to take care. Firstly, in certain cases of heart affection the ordinary ray-bath might prove dangerous. Also we like to make sure that our patients—our CLIENTS—obtain benefit from our treatment. Pardon me. . . ."

The cold rim of the stethoscope impinged on the flesh over Gun's heart and lungs. The soft fingers of the doctor—Gun found them rather repellent—closed lightly on his pulse.

"H'm, yes. . . . And the tongue, if you please!"

"Thank you! There is little wrong with you—but you have been overdoing it slightly of late. A little overwork—overstrain, maybe. You need some rest. The nerves, too, are a little shaken!"

"I was just thinking the same thing," interrupted Gun, with a reining which escaped the doctor.

"Yes. The ray-baths will do you a lot of good, you will find. But you must also sleep. If you would favor me with your name. . . .?"

"Dogsbody," answered Gun, unhesitatingly. "Arthur Dogsbody. Just a visitor to London!"

"I see!"

The doctor scribbled in his case-book. Gun had a sudden idea, and took a quick glance over his shoulder. The doctor wrote a large and—unusual for a man of his profession—plain hand. The name preceding Gun's assumed one was "Pullinger."

A Showoff Comes Back to the Old Home Town To Find
That More than Houses Can Change

By VIRGINIA COFFEY

Willy Deene wanted to show off. That's why he had returned to his home town, although it could hardly be called town. No, Chicago had grown—grown right out of any semblance of a home town, and Willy was surprised. Sure, he had heard of much activity on the old stamping ground, but he would never have believed that 40 years could have changed it so much.

When he had left, in all the importance of his 14 years, he had vowed that he would come home a success, if ever he came home. Even today, he remembered his uncle's bitterness.

"You're no more a lunkhead. Jest like yer pa. I want to see you in the shop at 6 tomorrow—helpin' get them horses shod, same as the rest o' us. It's time ya got to work 'y' hear? Ain't 'y' ain't there?"

He was tired of being poor, so that come? Give me the address an' I'll take a cab out."

Willy felt depressed as he hung up the phone. Poor Joe! The boyd probably had a tough time all his life. Worked like a slave, and nothing to show for it. Living up north in that forsaken part of town. Maybe he ought to bring Joe something, something he'd like.

All the time he was dressing that evening, Willy glowed with the thought of his present. Joe sure could be proud of it. The salesman had said it was the biggest and best car on the market. Had a new thing to shift gears with, and that carburetor that made the engine run so smooth—made the Limozelle the best car on the market for 20 odd years. Willy chuckled to himself as he donned his new blue silk shirt. The car was to be delivered to Joe's address at dinner time. He picked a salmon-

The Skipper Celebrated with the Christening of the Fifth Yawl

Willy decided to leave, and by 11 o'clock he had persuaded Sam, the ticket-taker of the small minstrel show, that he needed an apprentice. Willy was on the road at 6 the next morning.

But it wasn't that Willy didn't like the show—or the company, it was just that the sea looked so fascinating at sunset. Lying about his experience, he shipped without the week, and never a regret shadowed his mind.

He sailed the world for three years with that boat. Three strenuous years. And it was purely by accident that he ever left her, for he made good money with that crew.

Willy, in his three years, had learned several very useful things. So, after he had won the fishing yawl, there was nothing left to do but to make use of it. He became a fisherman.

On his 20th birthday the skipper celebrated with the christening of the fifth yawl of his growing fleet. His success was phenomenal and he knew it.

Forgotten was his uncle and the poverty of his youth. Forgotten was the desire to prove his worth—forgotten for 34 years.

But now he was back to show his town that Willy Deene was a success, that it would have been his uncle to have shown greater care in his tempestuous explosions, for Willy might have made the same success at home, a success in which his uncle could have shared. Failure anywhere was not for Willy Deene.

Willy found the name in the telephone directory. With his hand on the cradle of the phone, he considered for a moment what he would say. Then, confident, he called the number.

"Uncle Joe? This is Willy—Willy Deene."

"Willy Deene? Are you sure you have the right number?"

"You're Joseph Frew?"

"Yes. But—Deene—Willy Deene—"

Say, you aren't by any chance the cousin that used to live with us—that ran away?"

"Right. I was just passing through. Thought I'd see how you were."

"But, Willy, this is little Joe—remember? I was five when you left. Father, he—he died over 10 years ago."

"Humph, too bad. How've ya been, Joe? Life treatin' ya right?"

"Fine, Willy. Say, Willy, won't you come out to dinner this evening? Where are you staying?"

'Girl from Avenue A'
Jane Withers's Latest

Jane Withers jumps from the Bowery to Park Avenue in her latest starring film, "Girl From Avenue A," the Twentieth Century-Fox picture which comes tomorrow to the Strand theater.

Jane's a Bowery spiffire on her own in the highest society, trying hard to be a lady. But a quick consensus of the four hundred reveals that Jane does better as a spiffire than she does as a lady.

Strangely emotional and riotously funny, "Girl From Avenue A" has been labeled the most appealing show she's done. The strong featured cast includes Kent Taylor, Katharine Aldridge, Elyse Knox, Laura Hope Crews, Jessie Ralph and many others.

Carole Landis, shapely screen newcomer who attracted wide attention in the feminine starring role in "1,000,000 B. C.," has been given her first big dramatic opportunity.

She was signed by Paramount for the feminine lead in "Mystery Sea Raider," sensational story suggested by the recent adventures of the German raider, Graf Spee and the prison ship Altmark, and which is the associate feature with Jane Withers.

Henry Wilcoxon plays the male lead in the picture, and Onslow Stevens the heavy.

Inspired by current headlines, "Mystery Sea Raider" deals with an American merchantman which is seized by a belligerent power, disguised by new paint and false funnels, and used as a "mother ship" for sea raiders. Human drama arises from the fact that captured crews and passengers from scuttled ships are imprisoned aboard the vessel to keep them from revealing its whereabouts.

Miss Landis, who recently completed "Turnabout" at the Hal Roach studio, will be seen as a passenger on the captured ship of which Wilcoxon is captain. Stevens is cast in the role of the betrayer of the vessel.

Version of Viennese
Comedy Is Shown

Purists who up their noses at such Hollywood goings-on as Benny Goodman and Leopold Stokowski performing a dual concert are said to have an opportunity to do some expert asstance looking at a film called "My Love Came Back," which is now showing at the Liberty theater.

The picture is a naturalized version of a Viennese comedy and has to do with a music school in which a group of bright young students, led by a swing extrovert in the house,

"Must be some mistake. Maybe my hearin's not so good," muttered Willy. "I don't know. Oh, on here comes the car now. I'd better go in here an' phone."

He scratched his head in puzzlement. Willy mounted the steps and rang the bell. The door opened.

"Can I —" Willy began.

"Good evening sir. Step inside."

The man in black directed with a bow.

Willy stepped in.

"Willy—I'm glad to see you."

It was Joe—in full dress.

"Joe? You live here?"

"Certainly. Come in, come in."

"You work here?"

"No, Willy. We've done pretty well—remember, I told you."

"Then—you're not poor?"

"No," Joe smiled. "Don't you believe me? Father invented the Frew carburetor—in the Limozelle, you know. He left me his fortune."

In the supporting cast are Frank McHugh, Edmund Lowe, Donald Douglas and Nella Walker.

Old Wagons Resurrected
For "20 Mule Team"

The original high-wheeled wagons which hauled thousands of tons of borax out of Death Valley in the 1890's, and which had been on exhibit outside the railroad depot at Barstow since the track was laid to the present plant at Trona, went back into service for the motion picture, "20 Mule Team," now showing at the Embassy theater.

Originally driven by "Borax Bill" Parkinson, they were driven in the film by Wallace Beery, enacting the fictional character, Bill Bragg. In Parkinson's day the haul from Furnace Creek to Mojave, then the nearest railroad point, 162 miles away, was made with two wagons and a steel water tank coupled together and pulled by the 20 mules, averaging sixteen to eighteen miles a day in a temperature that ranged from 136 to 150 degrees. One stretch of sixty miles had no water. Therefore the steel tank containing 1200 gallons for man and beast.

'Girl from Avenue A' Jane Withers's Latest

Jane Withers jumps from the Bowery to Park Avenue in her latest starring film, "Girl From Avenue A," the Twentieth Century-Fox picture which comes tomorrow to the Strand theater.

Jane's a Bowery spitfire on her own in the highest society, trying hard to be a lady. But a quick consensus of the four hundred reveals that Jane does better as a spitfire than she does as a lady.

Strangely emotional and riotously funny, "Girl From Avenue A" has been labeled the most appealing show she's done. The strong featured cast includes Kent Taylor, Katharine Aldridge, Elyse Knox, Laura Hope Crews, Jessie Ralph and many others.

Carole Landis, shapely screen newcomer who attracted wide attention in the feminine starring role in "10,000 B. C.," has been given her first big dramatic opportunity.

She was signed by Paramount for the feminine lead in "Mystery Sea Raider," sensational story suggested by the recent adventures of the German raider, Graf Spee and the prison ship Altmarm, and which is the associate feature with Jane Withers.

Henry Wilcoxon plays the male lead in the picture, and Onslow Stevens the heavy.

Inspired by current headlines, "Mystery Sea Raider" deals with an American merchantman which is seized by a belligerent power, disguised by new paint and false funnels, and used as a "mother ship" for sea raiders. Human drama arises from the fact that captured crews and passengers from scuttled ships are imprisoned aboard the vessel to keep them from revealing its whereabouts.

Miss Landis, who recently completed "Turnabout" at the Hal Roach studio, will be seen as a passenger on the captured ship of which Wilcoxon is captain. Stevens is cast in the role of the betrayer of the vessel.

Version of Viennese Comedy Is Shown

Purists who up their noses at such Hollywood goings-on as Benny Goodman and Leopold Stokowski performing a dual concert are said to have an opportunity to do some expert asstance looking at a film called "My Love Came Back" which is now showing at the Liberty theater.

The picture is a naturalized version of a Viennese comedy and has to do with a music school in which a group of bright young students, led by a swing extrovert in the

Old Wagons Resurrected For "20 Mule Team"

The original high-wheeled wagons which hauled thousands of tons of borax out of Death Valley in the 1890's, and which had been on exhibit outside the railroad depot at Barstow since the track was laid to the present plant at Trona, went back into service for the motion picture, "20 Mule Team," now showing at the Embassy theater.

Originally driven by "Borax Bill" Parkinson, they were driven in the film by Wallace Beery, enacting the fictional character, Bill Bragg. In Parkinson's day the haul from Furnace Creek to Mojave, then the nearest railroad point, 162 miles away, was made with two wagons and a steel water tank coupled together and pulled by the 20 mules, averaging sixteen to eighteen miles a day in a temperature that ranged

Arlo Klinetob Wins Tennis Singles Title

Joy Hartman Is Winner of Women's Singles

Baltimore Team Takes Doubles; Hartmans Win Mixed Doubles

Notwithstanding rain and a cold, many spectators were at the Cumberland Country Club all day yesterday to watch the final rounds of the Allegheny Mountains tennis tournament.

The tournament this year attracted many well-known tennis players and fast tennis was produced the first three days on local courts.

Arlo Klinetob, of Scranton, Pa., won the men's singles from "Bill" Godfrey, of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, 6-0, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Godfrey Plays Well
Frank G. Roberts, Baltimore, one of the leading officials in the Middle Atlantic Lawn Tennis Association, teamed with Alex Kelle, another Baltimorean, to win the men's doubles from Arlo Klinetob and Adrian Hartman, the best two out of three sets on account of darkness, 6-2, 6-4.

The mixed doubles were annexed by Joy Hartman and her brother, Adrian, last year's champions, from Dolly Harris, Pittsburgh, and Allie Rittenberg, Washington, 6-1, 6-1.

One of the features of the tournament was the playing of "Bill" Godfrey. In the semi-finals he defeated Harry Wald, winner of the tournament for the past three years, 7-5, 6-4. In the quarter-finals he defeated Bob Brosius, Pittsburgh, 6-4, 7-5 after Brosius had a five-game lead in the deciding set.

Klinetob, to reach the finals, bested Martin Tressel, Pittsburgh, in the quarter-finals. In the semi-finals he eliminated Allie Rittenberg, one of the best matches of the tournament. Rittenberg took the first set 6-0, losing the second 6-1, and fighting out the third to lose at 2-6.

Trophies Are Presented
In the semi-finals of the men's doubles Roberts and Kelle defeated Harry Wald and Tressel, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. Klinetob and Hartman advanced through both and McCandless, Arlington, Va., 6-2, 6-3.

A table full of beautiful challenge trophies and permanent prizes for winner and runner-up in every event, were presented by Dr. Karl Heinz after the conclusion of the matches. He also congratulated the various committees on the success of the tournament this year.

Schroeder and Kramer Capture Doubles Crown

Young Californians Turn Back Mulloy and Prusoff in Three Sets

By BILL KING
BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 25. (AP)—The National doubles tennis championships, usually reserved for seasoned and hard-bitten campaigners, were placed on the brows of Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, a pair of 19-year-old Californians, today after they overcame the more experienced Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, Wash., 6-4, 8-6, 9-7, 6-3.

Tradition, however, prevailed in the women's division, for Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev., garnered the national titles for the fourth consecutive year by racing through the first round.

While waging their determined battle to become the youngest doubles champions in history, Kramer and Schroeder, victors in twelve of their previous fifteen tournaments, concentrated on their short game and outplayed their rivals into submission from the fore-courts.

Their accurate half-volleys and overhead smashes cracked Mulloy's voice once in each set, and those who decided the title match.

Mulloy managed to whip over sixteen placements during the match, but he more than wiped them out by piling up forty-six errors.

The women's title match was a drab comparison, for the successful defending champions towered over their opponents throughout, despite heroic efforts of Mrs. Van Ryn, who won the 1936 national doubles with the now Mrs. Carolyn Brock Stark, of Los Angeles.

Windman Forfeits Game to Westvaco
Windman did not have enough players at Westvaco yesterday to field a team on the field and forfeited a Bi-State league game to Westvaco.

In exhibition game was then played with Westvaco winning 9-0.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—They're heckled and hooted by opposing teams. The press has taken them apart and patted them, but not together again. The day riders and the night riders in the bleachers have been taking them over the jumps.

So it's little wonder that the Cleveland Indians, on the verge of winning their first pennant in twenty years, are a morose, unhappy bunch of athletes who are where they are because of their mechanical ability and will to win rather than spirit inspired by sheer exuberance and a "come on, gang, let's go" attitude.

"I've seen Cleveland teams hold joyous celebrations when they clinched fourth place," said one close follower of the Tribe, "but I think that when these fellows clinch the pennant, which I think they will, they'll greet the occasion as just another day."

Back of it all is the smouldering unrest due to friction between players and Manager Oscar Vitt. It flared brightly once, but for the benefit of all concerned an effort has been made to keep it under cover since. However, it's like trying to hide an elephant in a china closet. Part of it is bound to stick out somewhere.

Rumors or unwary statements by players, of a threat of physical violence shouted at Uncle Oz by one of his players if Vitt dared levy a fine, of rumblings of discontent disclose the presence of the blaze.

Through this unrest Uncle Oz smiles bravely, disdaining comment. He thinks he has a team which will win the flag, and he scoffs at the idea that it would be necessary to pitch the arm off Bob Feller to do it, or that he would resort to that in any event.

"Robert will take his regular turn, that's all," he said. "I wouldn't think of risking his future. And besides, I don't think he could go every couple of days. It isn't human."

As a matter of fact, a Cleveland follower pointed out that Feller lately had shown signs of weariness. Through last Friday, he said, Bob hadn't pitched a real Feller game since July 30.

"His arm is all right, understand," he said, "and he loves to be in there, whether they are hitting him or not. But just consider he has worked harder than any other pitcher. He started pitching every fourth day at the start of the season."

"He shouldn't be needed for extra duty, anyway," he continued. "We have five good pitchers. Mel Harder is just coming around and he's always been the best late-season pitcher in the league. He'll take up any slack if Bob should tire."

Oddy enough, it isn't Detroit which the Indians followers fear. It's the pesky Yanks. They don't think that the Yanks can catch them, but they're keeping their fingers crossed until the Yanks are nine games behind and eight to go or a like situation.

The Detroit infield has held together better than anybody expected, they point out, but they think it is through now. They rate the Red Sox as visiting relations. They ignore them. The Boston pitching staff just doesn't have what it takes. As for their own team, they figure it is better perfect, although they admit it could use a little power in the outfield. It has the strength, Oz says, you're all right ninety-nine per cent of the time if you've got that.

In fact, they're even looking beyond the pennant.

"We'll beat the Reds in the World Series," one said emphatically. Why? We've got a better balanced team, that's all."

Old Germans Down Flintstone

The Old Germans of the Tri-Country League yesterday defeated the Flintstone Athletics by a score of 19-2 on the latter field. The Germans pounded two Flintstone pitchers for 21 safeties including extra base hits. Frank "Zeke" Riehl hit for the circuit in the third with two mates on base. Chet "Clip" Collins rang up his seventh victory in limiting the losers to five safeties while going the distance.

The Brewers got off to an early start when they scored two runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth, they also registered five in each the seventh and eighth and scored one more in the ninth for the final run of the game.

The Brewers led by the heavy hitting of Captain Ed Widdows and P. Riehl who had five hits in the six times at the plate. Guy Cingerman had 2 of the losers hits including a triple.

Snead's Favored To Win P.G.A. Golf Tourney

Leading Professionals Tune-up for Championship Play

By TOM REEDY
HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 25. (AP)—The top-notchers of professional golf wound up today final rehearsals for their annual fling at the P. G. A. match play championship with most of them none too confident the 7,000-yard Hershey layout would yield to fancy scoring sprees.

Last minute tuneups for the qualifying rounds, which start tomorrow, were played under a steady rain.

The brigade of 130, largest field in the tournament since it first was held in 1916, came to the wire with the knowledge that only a handful of them in three or four days of drills managed to give par 73 a better than fair battle.

Out of the steady firing came a sparkling 68 by Jimmy Demaret, a pair of 70's by little Ben Hogan and a 69 by defending champion and home professional, Henry G. Picard.

Arriving today, Slammin' Sammy Snead who goes into most tournaments the top-heavy favorite, slashed around nine holes in four under par.

Two 18-hole rounds Monday and Tuesday will cut the field to 64, including Picard who is exempt from qualifying because of his triumph last year at Pomonok, L. I.

This group of survivors engages in two 18-hole matches Wednesday. Thirty-six hole matches follow Thursday, with the quarter-finals Friday, semi-finals Saturday and the two-man finals Sunday.

Rated at five to one, Snead was a notch over blonde Craig Wood and Hogan, who also belt them a mile when they're swinging right.

Seven of the twelve past P. G. A. winners were on hand, including Walter Hagen, five-time champion. His record of thirty-eight matches won and only nine lost in this tournament dominates the association's history.

The others are Johnny Revolta, (1935), Paul Runyan (1934-38), Leo Diegel (1928-29), Denny Shute (1936-37), Jim Barnes (1916-19), and Picard.

Colts Lose to Keyser 6 to 5

West Virginians Shove over Run in Ninth To Break Tie

The Cumberland Colts dropped a hard fought game to Keyser at Keyser yesterday 6 to 5 in a Bi-State League contest.

Cumberland took a two run lead in the third but saw it whittled in half when Keyser scored one in the same inning. In the fourth Keyser shoved over four runs, but the Colts came back in the top of the fifth with a singled marker and then rallied in the ninth to shove over two runs and tie the score.

In the last half of the inning, in the third Sarver was hit by a pitched ball, Fleming scored him with a triple and counted on DeLuca's double. For Keyser Case was safe on an error and scored on High's triple.

A walk, single, Johnson's triple, Ward's sacrifice, Casey's single and two errors gave Keyser four runs in the fourth.

The Colts tied the score in the top of the ninth as Henry singled, DeLuca doubled and Van Roby drove them both home with a single over second.

Keyser won the game in the last of the ninth on High's walk, a safe punt by Tyler and Scall's safe hit past third.

Cumberland pounded out eleven hits off Casey while Fleming and Woodson held Keyser to nine.

Pittsburgh Takes First Game 4 to 3; Fitzsimmons Wins Nightcap

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25. (AP)—Pitching in the rain, Freddy Fitzsimmons notched his thirteenth victory of the season today in the nightcap of a doubleheader as the Brooklyn Dodgers routed the Pirates 8 to 1 after losing the opener 4 to 3.

The final five innings of the afterpiece were played in heavy rain before a crowd of 22,257, but the downpour didn't bother fat Freddy, who twirled a five-hitter.

In the nightcap, Bob Klinger gave up four runs, Danny MacPeyden and Russ Bauers yielded one each, and Max Butcher two when Babe Phelps clouted his tenth circuit blow of the season in the ninth with one aboard.

Senator Rookie Hands Cleveland Another Defeat

Washington Wins 5 to 4 as Indians Drop Fourth Straight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. (AP)—Rookie Sid Hudson scored his thirteenth victory of the season today as Washington defeated the Cleveland Indians 5 to 4 in a chilly drizzle. It was the fourth straight loss for the Tribe.

The Senators sent Johnny Allen, first of four Indian hurlers, to the showers in the first inning with a four-run rally. George Case opened with a double. Allen hit Buddy Lewis in the back. Johnny Weir forced Case attempting a sacrifice and a pass to Cecil Travis filled the bags.

Buddy Myer then slammed a triple to left, scoring the three runners, and came home himself on Rick Ferrell's single.

Rough Work Is Scheduled for Grid Candidates

Allegany Mentor Will Hold Scrimmage Sessions This Week

Coach Herman Ball said yesterday scrimmage sessions will start this week in an effort to whip the team into condition for the opening game with Ridgeley at Fort Hill stadium Friday night, September 13.

Ball will build his club, which will be almost a new creation, around three holdover regulars and three other lettermen, filling in huge holes with other players who have gained some experience either as members of the varsity or javvy squads.

Yoder Switched to Guard

Bill Yoder, former backfield candidate switched to guard in 1967 has been returned into the backfield totting department. A senior, he has the inside track to the fullback position.

Donald Hinnock, senior tackle, the other holdover first-stringer while Tommy Rudd, senior halfback; William Chandlee, senior quarterback, and Fred Sullivan, junior end, are lettermen.

Robert Wolford, first-string center last fall when the ninth grader will probably see little action this year. Tall for his age, Wolford has failed to add necessary pounds during the winter and, in addition, has some scholastic deficiencies to overcome.

Coach Ball has been using Robert Twigg and Harry Yeager, seniors on the varsity squad last year, at the guard posts, and Joe Gorman, a tenth-grader, at tackle along with Hillock.

Boston Bees Snap Cards' Winning Streak

St. Louis Takes Second Game by Rally in Seventh

Bill Posedel Lets Cardinals Down with Five Hits in Opener

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 25 (AP)—Boston's seventh-place Bees broke the Cardinals' blaring winning streak at nine straight games by taking the first half of today's doubleheader, 4 to 1, but the Cards rebounded with an 8 to 5 victory in the nightcap to remain first in third place.

Only after a bitter struggle were the Redbirds able to win the second encounter. They were leading 4 to 1, after five innings but Boston rushed ahead, 5-4, in the sixth.

Then Enos Slaughter, whose home run accounted for the Cards' lone tally in the first game, tied up the count with a timely single in the seventh. Johnny Mize promptly inserted his thirty-seventh homer of the season with a mate on base to decide the battle.

Bill Posedel was in fine form as he routed the Cardinals with only five hits in the opener for his ninth win of the year.

Pilgrimage to Saratoga Is Really To Buy A Nag

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Word has reached the society reporters in Saratoga that Ace-Deuce Lardner, the dapper plunger, acknowledged leader of the horsey set around Gooley's cigar store, is en route to the Spa with party.

When they say "with party," I guess they are referring to the curious group of people accompanying me, most of them complete strangers. The only one I can place off-hand is M. Bongi, my faithful native bearer, who will carry my money in a basket on his shoulders and push the car over that Roosevelt hill just north of President Roosevelt's diggings in Hyde Park.

Any Roosevelt who wants to come out and help push as we pass by is welcome. The spirit of the expedition is one of genial camaraderie. What Saratoga little suspects, however, is this the Lardner visit this year is business, not social. Naturally, I expect to pass the time of day with A. G. Vanderbilt, and perhaps split a pork chop with the Whitneys and play a couple of rubbers with the Rensselaers (what would the season be like the Rensselaers often ask without a couple of rubbers with that jolly Mr. Lardner? I forget the answer).

Bill Posedel was in fine form as he routed the Cardinals with only five hits in the opener for his ninth win of the year.

Ted Lyons Halts Winning Streak Of the Yankees

Sox Take First Game 1 to 0; Champs Win Nightcap 3 to 1

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—Two pitchers—one a veteran who has been fooling American League batters for eighteen years—the other a rookie appearing in his fifth Major League game, commanded top billing as the Yankees and the Chicago White Sox halved a doubleheader before a top-coated audience of 70,740 spectators today.

Casey Ted Lyons, 39-year-old wonder, out-pitched Red Ruffing to stop the Yanks string of victories at six when he tossed a magnificent three-hitter to win 1-0 in the opening game, while big Ernie Bonham, 220-pound recruit from Kansas City, gained the Yankees an even split for the day, besting tall Thornton Lee, 3-1, in the nightcap.

The opener was won in the ninth when Ted Wright doubled home Luke Appling, who had singled.

Detroit Gains Full Game in Pennant Race

Victory as Tigers Trounce A's

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25 (AP)—Buck Newsom kept nine hits well scattered today and won his sixteenth victory of the season for Detroit when the Tigers rode roughshod over the Athletics, 7 to 3, before 19,794 at Shibe park.

Detroit kept up a driving attack on Lee Ross, the A's starting pitcher, and he finally was removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh after giving up five runs and nine hits. Bill Beckman and E. Heusser, who succeeded Ross on the mound, each were reached for a run.

The victory put the Tigers 2½ games behind the first place Cleveland Indians, who lost to Washington.

Arlo Kline To Win Tennis Singles Title

Joy Hartman Is Winner of Women's Singles

Baltimore Team Takes Doubles; Hartmans Win Mixed Doubles

Notwithstanding rain and a cold, many spectators were at the Cumberland Country Club all day yesterday to watch the final rounds of the Allegheny Mountains tennis tournament.

The tournament this year attracted the well-known tennis players and fast tennis was produced the past three days on local courts.

Arlo Kline, of Scranton, Pa., won the men's singles from "Bill" Godfrey, of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, 6-0, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Godfrey Plays Well

Frank G. Roberts, Baltimore, one of the leading officers in the Middle Atlantic Lawn Tennis Association, teamed with Alex Kelle, another Baltimorean, to win the men's doubles from Arlo Kline and Adrian Hartman, (the best two out of three sets on account of darkness), 6-2, 6-4.

The mixed doubles were annexed by Joy Hartman and her brother, Adrian, last year's champions, from Dolly Harris, Pittsburgh, and Allie Roberts, Washington, 6-1, 6-1.

One of the features of the tournament was the playing of "Bill" Godfrey. In the semi-finals he defeated Harry Wald, winner of the tournament for the past three years, 7-5, 6-4. In the quarter finals he disposed of Bob Brosius, Pittsburgh, 6-2, 7-5 after Brosius had a five-game lead in the deciding set.

Kline, to reach the final, bested Martin Tresselt, Pittsburgh, in the quarter-finals. In the semi-finals he eliminated Allie Rittenburg, one of the best matches of the tournament. Rittenburg took the first set 6-0, losing the second 6-1, and fighting out the third to lose at 6-8.

Trophies Are Presented

In the semi-finals of the men's doubles Roberts and Kelle defeated Harry Wald and Tresselt, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. Kline and Hartman advanced through Bots and McCandlish Arlington, Va., 6-2, 6-3.

A table full of beautiful challenge trophies and permanent prizes for the winner and runner-up in every event, were presented by Dr. Karl Heintz after the conclusion of the matches. He also congratulated the various committees on the success of the tournament this year.

Schroeder and Kramer Capture Doubles Crown

Young Californians Turn Back Mulloy and Prusoff in Three Sets

BY BILL KING

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 25. (AP) — The National doubles tennis championships, usually reserved for seasoned and hard-bitten campaigners, were placed on the brow of Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, a pair of 19-year-old Californians, today after they overcame the more experienced Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, Wash., 6-4, 8-6, 9-7, 10-8, in Longwood.

Tradition, however, prevailed in the women's division, for Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev., garnered these national titles for the fourth successive year by racing through Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Austin, Tex., and Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Cal., 6-4, 6-3.

While vying their determined battle to become the youngest doubles champions in history, Kramer and Schroeder, victors in twelve of their previous fifteen tournaments, concentrated on their short game and battered their rivals into submission from the fore-courts.

Their accurate half-volleys and overhead smashes cracked Mulloy's defense once in each set, and those who decided the title match.

Mulloy managed to whip over the net placements during the match, but he more than wiped out by piling up forty-six errors.

The women's title match was drab in comparison, for the successful defending champions towered over their opponents throughout, despite heroic efforts of Mrs. Van Ryn, who won the 1936 national doubles title with the now Mrs. Carolyn Brock Stark, of Los Angeles.

Wyndman Forfeits Game to Westvaco

Wyndman did not have enough players at Westvaco yesterday to field a team on the field and forfeited a Bi-State league game to Westvaco.

An exhibition game was then played with Westvaco winning 9-0.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—They're heckled and booed by opposing teams. The press has taken them apart and pasted them, but not together again. The day riders and the night riders in the bleachers have been taking them over the jumps.

So it's little wonder that the Cleveland Indians, on the verge of winning their first pennant in twenty years, are a morose, unhappy bunch of athletes who are where they are because of their mechanical ability and will to win rather than spirit inspired by sheer exuberance and a "come on, gang, let's go" attitude.

"I've seen Cleveland teams hold joyous celebrations when they clinched fourth place," said one close follower of the Tribe, "but I think that when these fellows clinch the pennant, which I think they will, they'll greet the occasion as just another day."

Back of it all is the smouldering unrest due to friction between players and Manager Oscar Vitt. It flared brightly once, but for the benefit of all concerned an effort has been made to keep it under cover since. However, it's like trying to hide an elephant in a china closet. Part of it is bound to stick out somewhere.

Rumors or unwary statements by players, of a threat of physical violence shouted at Uncle Oz by one of his players if Vitt dared levy a fine, of rumblings of discontent disclose the presence of the blaze.

Through this unrest Uncle Oz smiles bravely, disdaining comment. He thinks he has a team which will win the flag, and he scoffed at the idea that it would be necessary to pitch the arm off Bob Feller to do it, or that he would resort to that in any event.

"Robert will take his regular turn, that's all," he said. "I wouldn't think of risking his future. And besides, I don't think he could go every couple of days. It isn't human."

As a matter of fact, a Cleveland follower pointed out that Feller lately had shown signs of weariness. Through last Friday, he said, Bob hadn't pitched a real Feller game since July 30.

"His arm is all right, understand," he said, "and he loves to be in there, whether they are hitting him or not. But just consider he has worked harder than any other pitcher. He started pitching every fourth day at the start of the season."

"He shouldn't be needed for extra duty, anyway," he continued. "We have five good pitchers. Mel Harder is just coming around and he's always been the best late-season pitcher in the league. He'll take up any slack if Bob should tire."

Oddly enough, it isn't Detroit which the Indians followers fear. It's the pesky Yanks. They don't think that the Yanks can catch them, but they're keeping their fingers crossed until the Yanks are nine games behind and eight to go or a like situation.

The Detroit infield has held together better than anybody expected, they point out, but they think it is through now. They rate the Red Sox as visiting relations. They ignore them. The Boston pitching staff just doesn't have what it takes. As for their own team, they figure it is letter perfect, although they admit it could use a little power in the outfield. It has the strength down the middle, though, and Uncle Oz says you're all right ninety-nine per cent of the time if you've got that.

In fact, they're even looking beyond the pennant.

"We'll beat the Reds in the World Series," one said emphatically. Why? We've got a better balanced team, that's all."

Old Germans Down Flintstone

The Old Germans of the Tri-County League yesterday defeated the Flintstone Athletics by a score of 19-2 on the latter field.

The Germans pounded two Flintstone pitchers for 21 safeties including extra base hits. Frank "Zeke" Riehl hit for the circuit in the third with two mates on base. Chet "Clip" Collins rang up his seventh victory in limiting the losers to five safeties while going the distance.

The Brewers got off to an early start when they scored two runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth, they also registered five in each the seventh and eighth and scored one more in the ninth for the final run of the game.

The Brewers led by the heavy hitting of Captain Ed Widdows and F. Riehl who had five hits in the six times at the plate. Guy Clingerman had 2 of the losers hits including a triple.

Centerville Beats Bard Nine 15 to 4

CENTERVILLE, Aug. 25.—Centerville shellacked Bard here this afternoon 15 to 4 in a Pen-Mar League game.

Mickey had a home run and two singles. Hit safely four times and may hit three safeties for the winners.

The batteries were for Centerville Rose and Mickey; Bard, Kimball, May and Lysburger.

Snead Is Favored To Win P.G.A. Golf Tourney

Leading Professionals Tune-up for Championship Play

By TOM REEDY

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 25. (AP)—The top-notchers of professional golf wound up today final rehearsals for their annual fling at the P. G. A. match play championship with most of them none too confident the 7,000-yard Hershey layout would yield to fancy scoring spears.

Last minute tuneups for the qualifying rounds, which start tomorrow, were played under a steady rain.

The brigade of 130, largest field in the tournament since it first was held in 1916, came to the wire with the knowledge that only a handful of them in three or four days of drills managed to give par 73 a better than fair battle.

Out of the steady firing came a sparkling 68 by Jimmy Demaret, a pair of 70's by little Ben Hogan and a 69 by defending champion and home professional, Henry G. Picard.

Arriving only today, Slammin' Sammy Snead who goes into most tournaments the top-heavy favorite, slashed around nine holes in four under par.

Two 18-hole rounds Monday and Tuesday will cut the field to 64, including Picard who is exempt from qualifying because of his triumph last year at Pomponok, L. I.

This group of survivors engages in two 18-hole matches Wednesday. Thirty-six hole matches follow Thursday, with the quarter-finals Friday, semi-finals Saturday and the two-man finals Sunday.

Rated at five to one, Snead was a notch over blonde Craig Wood and Hogan, who also belt them a mile when they're swinging right.

Seven of the twelve past P. G. A. winners were on hand, including Walter Hagen, five-time champion. His record of thirty-eight matches won and only nine lost in this tournament dominates the association's history.

The others are Johnny Revolta, (1935), Paul Runyan (1934-38), Lou Diegel (1928-29), Denny Shute (1936-37), Jim Barnes (1916-19), and Picard.

Colts Lose to Keyser 6 to 5

West Virginians Show over Run in Ninth To Break Tie

The Cumberland Colts dropped a hard fought game to Keyser at Keyser yesterday 6 to 5 in a Bi-State League contest.

Cumberland took a two run lead in the third but saw it whittled in the same inning. In the fourth Keyser showed over four runs, but the Colts came back in the top of the fifth with a singled marker and then rallied in the ninth to shove over two runs and tie the score.

Only to see Keyser win the game in the last half of the inning.

In the third Sarver was hit by a pitched ball. Fleming scored him with a triple and counted on DeLuca's double. For Keyser Case was safe on an error and scored on High's triple.

A walk, single, Johnson's triple, Ward's sacrifice, Casey's single and two errors gave Keyser four runs in the fourth.

The Colts tied the score in the top of the ninth as Henry singled, DeLuca doubled and Van Roby drove them both home with a single over second.

Keyser won the game in the last of the ninth on High's walk, a safe punt by Tyler and Scall's safe hit past third.

Cumberland pounded out eleven hits off Casey while Fleming and Woodson held Keyser to nine.

Pittsburgh Takes First Game 4 to 3; Fitzsimmons Wins Nightcap

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25. (AP)—Pitching in the rain, Freddy Fitzsimmons notched his thirteenth victory of the season today in the nightcap of a doubleheader as the Brooklyn Dodgers routed the Pirates 8 to 1 after losing the opener 4 to 3.

The final five innings of the afterpiece were played in heavy rain before a crowd of 22,257, but the downpour didn't bother Fitz, who twirled a five-hitter.

In the nightcap, Bob Klinger gave up four runs, Danny MacFayden and Russ Batters yielded one each, and Max Butcher two when Babe Phelps clouted his tenth circuit bomb of the season in the ninth with one aboard.

Kiwanis Club Sunshine Camp Closes Today

Miss Jean Cavan Crowned Queen; 115 Children Enjoyed Vacations

Religious services last evening brought to a close the 1940 season of the Kiwanis Club Sunshine Camp, Haystack mountain, where 115 boys and girls had enjoyed themselves on two-week vacations during the months of July and August.

Thirty girls, the final group to spend their vacation at the camp, will depart for their homes this morning and the building will be closed until the 1941 season gets under way.

The final program yesterday included Sunday School and Vesper services which were in charge of Joseph W. Young, director.

Jean Cavan Is Queen
Little Miss Jean Cavan was crowned "Miss Kiwanis Sunshine" by Lloyd Rawlins, treasurer of the Kiwanis Club, at a special ceremony Saturday night. The "queen" was elected by members of the camp. William Somerville, president of the Kiwanis Club, acted as escort of the queen and P. Stuart Rowe was escort to the lady-in-waiting, Miss Lila Foster. The crown bearer was Miss Georgia Dixon. Miss Cavan received a gift from the campers.

Following the ceremony Fred T. Small, works manager of the Celanese Corporation, and John Park entertained the children with movies.

Friday evening the children viewed the huge Maryland Department American Legion convention parade from the steps of the city hall which were reserved for them. Before the procession reached that point the campers entertained the crowd by singing a number of popular songs.

Members of the Kiwanis club and their wives were guests of the campers Thursday night when the girls presented a minstrel show. Lemonade and candy were served the visitors.

Wednesday evening the "kiddies," who range in age from twelve to nine years, were guests of the management at Celanese pool.

Birthday parties were held during the week honoring Elyria Albright and Mary Ann Evans.

Miss Dorothy MacDonald was announced as the winner of the final jacks tournament.

Forty-seven boys and fifty-eight girls enjoyed the hospitality of the camp for a period of two weeks. Director Young said.

Have Tonsils Removed
A number of the children attending camp had their tonsils removed and others will undergo similar operations after the camp is closed.

The sum of approximately $5,000 was provided by the Kiwanis club this year for improvements and operation of "Sunshine" camp. The property was formerly the Haystack Sanatorium and was purchased and remodeled by the local service club.

Oiling of National Highway Will Start Today if Weather Permits

Oiling of the National Highway between Frostburg and the Six Mile House will be started today, provided the oil arrives this morning and there is a change in the weather.

Leo T. Downey, district engineer of the Maryland State Roads Commission, announces.

When the work gets under way Mr. Downey said, traffic between Frostburg and Cumberland will be detoured from Frostburg to McKenzies store over the Mt. Savage road. However, the road will not be closed to traffic operating between Frostburg and the Six Mile House, the engineer stated.

Mr. Downey advised those operating cars over the oiled highway to travel not over fifteen miles an hour. He added that it required time for the oil to set and that speeding machines throw the chips off the road.

It was indicated that the job of oiling the four-mile stretch would require about two days.

Following completion of the Six Mile House to Frostburg section of Route 40 the State Roads Commission will oil the Winchester road from Six Mile House to Crestapton. When this work gets under way traffic will be detoured over the Braddock road.

Registration of Aliens To Begin Here Tuesday

Foreigners Will Be Registered and Fingerprinted at Post Office

Registration of all aliens in Cumberland and vicinity will be started tomorrow at the federal building, Pershing street. Postmaster James C. Shriver announces.

The registration office will be in Room 331 on the third floor of the building in which the Cumberland postoffice is located. Frank Storm has been assigned as the registering clerk.

All aliens fourteen years of age or over are required to register and be fingerprinted. Aliens under fourteen years of age will not be fingerprinted but must be registered by their parents or guardians.

Insane alien persons must be registered by their guardians and persons unable to speak English should be accompanied by an interpreter.

In view of the fact that there is not a large alien population in Cumberland and vicinity the entire work should be completed by October 1, Mr. Shriver said.

Territory Designated
The extreme points to which Cumberland is the nearest registering office consists of all areas to and including Wellersburg, Hyndman and Chaneyville, on the north; Flintstone, Little Orleans, Oldtown and Greenspring on the east; Port Ashby on the south, and Rawlings and the Six Mile House on the west.

The first period of registration, according to Mr. Shriver, has been fixed from August 27 to September 14. Office hours are from 9 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon, 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., and 7 to 10 p. m.

All persons are urged to call at the Cumberland office during the first period at the hours indicated as the second period will be devoted to field work. All persons calling at the office for registration blanks can be registered at the local office regardless of their residence.

The second period of registration will be from September 16 to 30. Under this setup aged and infirm persons who notify Mr. Shriver of their inability to call in person will be visited during this period. If such persons are served by another postoffice they should notify their respective postmaster who in turn will advise Mr. Shriver. However, only one trip to each locality is anticipated so it is to the interest of the individual to contact their postmaster as early as possible.

To Register Inmates
Institutions such as asylums, hospitals, jails, etc., will be contacted and the alien inmates of such institutions will be registered during the second period. Industrial plants employing many persons and whose management desires their alien employees to have the convenience of registering at their places of employment can arrange for this service upon request. These cases also will be handled during the second period.

Assurance that every person calling to be registered will be courteously received and that every convenience possible will be extended to them is given by Postmaster Shriver.

"We are anxious to emphasize that there is no stigma attached to this registration," Mr. Shriver said. "Maryland looks on its aliens as friends. The registration is merely a common sense move to prevent any trouble-maker from hurting many thousands of his fellow-alien."

Local Dog Is the Central Figure in Suit Filed in Circuit Court

An injunction suit filed last week in circuit court against a dog describes the animal as being about as attractive as the "Hound of the Baskervilles."

The petition was filed by Dr. O. Ray Hedrick, a dentist, of 223 Baltimore avenue, who says the "large mongrel dog" owned by his neighbor, Mrs. Mary K. White is "vicious and dangerous."

Dr. Hedrick, represented by Attorneys William A. Gunter and William H. Geppert, contends that the dog is "vicious and dangerous, barks and howls at all hours of the day and night, trespasses on his property, snarls and snaps at his patients, frightens members of his family and is a nuisance."

Finally, the dog bit him on 5, Dr. Hedrick asserts.

Associate Judge William A. White signed an order restraining White to show cause on or September 16 why her dog should not be taken away.

The injunction proceedings a slander suit docketed recent Mrs. White against Mrs. Hedrick, wife of the dentist.

Mrs. White is asking $5,000 damages alleging that Mrs. Hedrick arrested several weeks ago, then failed to appear for the hearing. The incident impaired her "credit and reputation," Mrs. White claims.

Local Guardsmen Return after 21 Days of Training

Plans Are Made To Bring Company G to War-time Strength

Back in Cumberland after the toughest training period in the history of the National Guard, officers of Company G today were making plans to bring the local unit to full war-time strength.

According to Captain Randolph Milholland, Company G's present manpower of 107 men and four officers will be augmented by fifty more recruits as quickly as possible.

Arrived Home Saturday
The Cumberland unit, hardened by its twenty-one day training period, arrived home Saturday. The question uppermost in the mind of every member now is how soon they will be called out by the president.

Commenting on this question, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin last night quoted General D. John Markey, regimental commander, who told the Maryland boys that he "didn't think they would be called before October 15."

"It was the hardest camp from the standpoint of work we've ever had," Dr. Franklin, a major in the guard, said. "Our boys stood up under it very well."

Captain Milholland "pointed with pride" to the fine work of the company after the guardsmen checked in their equipment at the State Armory and received their pay.

Fine Marching Record
As members of the defending army that repulsed the imaginary attacking force during the mock war games, Company G marched twenty-four miles in one day on one occasion.

Following the invasion of France and the low countries, the Nazi command announced that much of the success of the invasion was due to the ground covered so rapidly by the infantry units. Nazi soldiers, toughened by years of intensive training, covered an average of twenty-five miles a day during the invasion.

"The Cumberland boys can't be called softies after their great showing," Captain Milholland said. "We left our base camp at 1:30 a. m. in a steady rain on one occasion and marched until that afternoon, covering twenty-four miles."

"Shortly after settling down, we received orders that our position was untenable and had to march three miles more. The next morning at 3 a. m., we moved up and attacked. Companies G and F split two enemy units, one of the deciding factors in the victory of the defending forces."

"We crossed a river by pontoon bridge and attacked the 18th Infantry of the regular army, but there were no referees in that section, and just like a Hollywood battle, we had to do it all over again for a 'retake' before the official result was known."

Matlick Is Promoted
The Cumberland guardsmen made the trip to upper New York state by train and spent twenty-one days in the customary two weeks in summer maneuvers.

The defending "Blue Army" numbered 52,000 troops while the invading "Black Army" had 30,000 men and no reserve manpower.

During the maneuvers, Sergt. Robert C. Matlick was advanced to the rank of second lieutenant in line with the revised setup under which Company G will contain a platoon manning three 60-millimeter mortars and four light machine guns.

Dairymen Cannot Lawfully Use Other Dairys Equipment
A drive is being made to curb the practice of some dairymen using equipment owned by other firms, according to Walter A. Clay, private detective.

Clay, who is acting for a local group of dairies, said some dairymen are using the bottles of other dairies to deliver milk. Such an act is a violation to the city milk ordinance, Sections 2 and 4.

A local dairymen was fined last week in police court on such a charge.

Local Girl Scouts Enjoy Outing

A "hare and hound" hunt used a hike of Girl Scout Troop 7 Saturday which culminated in a supper cooked over an open fireplace. The girls dined on burgers and corn on the cob.

Under the direction of their leader, Miss Myrtle Lee, the girls to the Boyd Mosser farm in E. county, returning to Cumberland about 8 p. m.

Troop members on the hike were Greta Harker, Barbara Co. Shirley Lou Nichols, Shirley Lois Ansel, Yvonne Rogers, Kames and Ruth Jane. Guests were Mrs. and Mrs. Hersch, Ruth Hersch, Betty and Florence Ann Schlott.

Legion Convention Ends As Officers Are Named

Gateway Chatter by News Staff Members

Things are rather quiet around Cumberland now after two weeks of racing and four days of the American Legion convention. Local residents enjoyed going to the races and having the Legionnaires here, but everyone seems to be ready for a rest.

Visiting Legionnaires were elated over the way they were treated in Cumberland, and many of them said it was not only the largest but one of the best conventions the Legion ever held in Maryland.

Thousands of citizens enjoyed the two hour parade staged here Friday night. It was colorful and entertaining and one of the best, if not the best, ever seen here.

Members of the Fort Cumberland post and the local auxiliary deserve all the praise they are receiving for their untiring efforts to see that each visitor had a good time. Staging a big convention is a hard job but the local veterans were equal to the task and are happy to have entertained their fellow Legionnaires.

Probably many folks noticed the locomotive operated over Cumberland streets during the Legion convention and in the parade here Friday night. Everybody managed to get out of the way of it except Mickey, who was run over and killed Saturday night as the locomotive started on its homeward trip.

Mickey was an Angora cat and, unaccustomed to ducking locomotives in the street, he failed to get out of the way.

Fitting services were held yesterday by Mickey's owners, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Fuller, of Baltimore avenue, and Mickey, the only casualty of the convention, now rests in peace, or pieces, under a grassy knoll near Baltimore pike.

Gateway Chatter readers will be interested in this one from the motion picture, "The Ghost Breakers."

One of the actors is explaining to Bob Hope just what is a "Zombie."

"A Zombie," said the actor, "is actually a dead man. He has no mind of his own, no soul or no will of his own, but just walks around in sort of a daze controlled by someone else."

"Oh I see," declared the enlightened Hope, remembering the Chicago convention, "just like a Democrat."

All aliens fourteen years of age or over are required to register and be fingerprinted. Aliens under fourteen years of age will not be fingerprinted but must be registered by their parents or guardians.

In view of the fact that there is not a large alien population in Cumberland and vicinity the entire work should be completed by October 1, Mr. Shriver said.

The second period of registration will be from September 16 to 30. Under this setup aged and infirm persons who notify Mr. Shriver of their inability to call in person will be visited during this period. If such persons are served by another postoffice they should notify their respective postmaster who in turn will advise Mr. Shriver.
